SPECTACULAR CRASH shown on deck of the U. S. Carrier Princeton occurred when a pilot got a signal to cut throttle when he expected a wave-off from landing signal officer. He dived for the deck. The F-6-F struck at an angle, engaged an arresting cable with such violence the craft broke in two. The front section is shown as it churned through three barriers.

Arms Bill Vote Near

Senate Defeats Economy Bloc

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—Senate leaders were hoping to get a final vote today on the giant $61 billion appropriations bill for the armed forces.

The economy bloc failed late yesterday to make cuts in the funds. Military Appropriations Chairman O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., predicted the same pattern will hold today and major attacks on the money will be defeated.

O'Mahoney disclosed he will ask a Senate-House conference, which will be held this week, on the bill, to safeguard funds for air expansion which got caught in an unexpected strait-jacket yesterday.

The strait-jacket, which could impair plane production, resulted when two senators—Holland, (D) Fla., and Ferguson, (R) Mich.—questioned the constitutionality of the huge bill.

• • •

THEY POINTED out that the armed services under the bill would have an indefinite time in which to spend the $61 billion. They noted that the Constitution prevents appropriations for the Army for more than a two-year period.

O'Mahoney said that some understanding will be adopted in conference that Congress will reappropriate unspent parts of the funds after the two-year period. He said this will permit the Airforce to go ahead with contracts for planes it will not have to pay for until after the two-year period expires.

Dewey Enters White House, But He's Late

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who has been trying to get to the White House since 1944, got there today—four minutes late—after losing his way.

Dewey had a noon appointment to confer with his arch political rival, President Truman, on Far Eastern affairs.

The unsuccessful Republican presidential candidate, entered the White House grounds two minutes late and the big black limousine that brought him there started up the wrong driveway.

The limousine was forced to back out and enter the correct road to the building housing the presidential offices.

All-told he was four minutes late in entering the presidential offices—that is if you don't count the previous seven years.

ROBOTS DUE AFTER OCT. 1

Pilotless Bomb Squadron Is Readied By Airforce

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—The Airforce announced its first "pilotless bomber squadron" today and said it will be activated Oct. 1 at the missile test center near Cocoa, Fla.

The squadron will be equipped with pilotless "Matador" bombers — actually classified as guided missiles, although they are jet planes operated with automatic controls.

The Airforce revealed that the robot plane has swept - back wings, like the latest piloted jets, and that it has a single jet motor. It is listed as a light bomber. A spokesman said it somewhat resembles the B-51, except that it is smaller. It takes off from the ground under its own power.

A light bomber squadron usually has 15 to 18 planes. The Airforce said:

• • •

"THE SQUADRON will be supervised in its initial training by an already established training unit, the 655th Guided Missile Wing, a part of the Air Research and Development Command.

"Later, it will be made combat ready by intensive unit training under the supervision of the Tactical Air Command."

The tactical command has charge of giving air support to troops, indicating that the robots may be used as a kind of extended artillery to smash enemy positions.

The Airforce would give no information on the robot's bomb capacity, but it is known that atomic bombs can now be carried in relatively small planes, including those that can take off from aircraft carriers.

Gordon Dean, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is on record with a statement that A-bombs are being developed for use in "artillery and guided missiles."

The Airforce said the new robot, designated the "B-61 pilotless bomber" has performed successfully and accurately in repeated tests at Holoman Airforce base, Almagordo, N. Mex., and the test center at Cocoa.

DuPont Denies Cosmetics To Be Made Here

A Columbus report that the DuPont Co., which is purchasing nearly 500 acres of land south of Circleville, would manufacture cosmetics here was flatly denied Thursday by a spokesman for the huge chemical firm.

The spokesman declared that "the proposed plant cannot manufacture cosmetics since we never have been in that business and have no intention of going into it."

The Columbus report, carried by a television newscaster, also declared that the proposed Circleville DuPont branch "will be the third largest" in DuPont's wide holdings.

The DuPont spokesman commented:

"Preliminary talks concerning the Circleville project have not set the size or type of plant. We actually do not know what will be produced there, when plant construction will begin or when production might be expected." He added:

• • •

"THE ONLY definite decision is this: The proposed Circleville project will not produce explosives. It will produce some item for peacetime use."

He explained that if DuPont were interested in producing explosives or any other purely military product, the company would not be buying the land—the government would make such a purchase and turn it over to DuPont for operation.

The spokesman again referring to the false Columbus report, declared:

"When DuPont has reached its decision, Circleville will be the first to know about it."

Czech Airplanes Being Banned

FRANKFURT, Sept. 13 — An Allied spokesman announced today that all flights by Czech planes over Western Germany have been banned by the Allied high commissioners.

No official explanation was given but some observers felt the step might be another retaliatory measure for the arrest and 10-year imprisonment of American Newsman William N. Oatis for alleged espionage in Czechoslovakia.

Senate Panel OKs Lovett

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—The Senate Armed Services Committee unanimously approved today the appointment of Robert A. Lovett to succeed General George C. Marshall as secretary of defense.

Armed Services Chairman Russell, (D) Ga., said he may bring Lovett's nomination before the Senate today, but he said it will depend on the pressure of business.

ANOTHER BIG DRIVE AHEAD?

Commie Rejection Of UN Apology Is Seen Coming

TOKYO, Sept. 13—Communist propagandists paved the way today for possible rejection of the Allied explanation and apology for the mistaken strafing of neutral Kaesong, site of the suspended Korea armistice conference.

As Red forces continued pouring south to the Korean front, Radio Peiping took another step in an apparent campaign to blame the United Nations in advance for any renewed large-scale fighting.

In Tokyo, meantime, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway studied the latest official message from the North Korean-Chinese high command which said the cease-fire talks could be resumed, but only on Red terms.

The indications were the UN supreme commander would delay his answer at least another 24 hours.

Upon that answer and upon the Red reply to the UN explanation of the Kaesong strafing Monday night may well hinge the question of whether the truce negotiations are to be revived or the war burst out again in full fury.

• • •

THE INITIAL Communist reaction to the Allied explanation of the Kaesong incident was adverse.

Peiping broadcast a Kaesong dispatch from a Red correspondent belittling Wednesday's note from Vice Adm. Charles Turner Joy, head of the UN delegation, to chief Red Delegate Gen. Nam Il.

Joy attributed the strafing to "faulty navigation" in darkness, expressed the UN command's regrets and promised disciplinary action against the erring pilot.

The Peiping radio charged Thursday that Ridgway sought through Joy's note to "cover up" for eleven alleged "American" violations of Kaesong's neutrality by making a "confession" of one. The UN command has denied the other ten.

Both Ridgway and Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, were said to be basing their plans on the realization that the enemy is capable of mounting a serious assault.

Van Fleet's current limited objective attacks, it was pointed out, are designed to keep the Reds off balance as much as possible.

From the Tokyo vantage point the present situation appears almost identical to that which prevailed just before the giant Red offensives in April and May.

• • •

NORTH KOREAN roads are clogged with Communist supply traffic every night.

Night-flying UN pilots report they often see truck lights all the way to the horizon. The lights are doused as soon as the aircraft motors are detected by the Reds.

Officers in Tokyo say that three Communist tank divisions are deployed close to the front. And there is evidence a Communist international air force has been sent to the Korean war theater to support any ground offensive the Reds might decide to launch.

The one new factor making the present war situation different from that of last Spring is the current Red propaganda line, based on the stalled Kaesong talks.

By building up a case to pin the blame on the UN for possible failure of the talks, the Reds may be preparing to justify any future military action they may unleash.

Japan Gets New Status

Nation Can Parley With Neighbors

TOKYO, Sept. 13—Japan was given the right today to negotiate directly with 23 foreign governments which have accredited diplomatic missions in Tokyo.

This long stride toward restoration of Japans full sovereignty came only five days after the signing of the 49-nation Japanese peace treaty in San Francisco.

The action was taken by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme commander of the Allied occupation which is due to end 90 days after the peace pact takes effect.

Russia was omitted from the list of foreign countries with which the Japanese government was authorized to communicate directly instead of through the Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers (SCAP) as heretofore.

• • •

THE SOVIET Union never has arranged with SCAP for accreditation of its diplomatic representatives in Tokyo. The latter have the status only of members of the staff of Russia's representative on the Allied Council for Japan.

Ridgway's headquarters, in a memorandum to the Japanese government, granted Japan the freedom to deal directly with the 23 nations whose Tokyo missions are accredited to SCAP.

However, the order withheld from Japan the right to conclude any agreements without the prior approval of SCAP.

And it provided further that the Japanese government must conduct all of its negotiations in the English language and must submit to SCAP copies of all communications sent to and received from the foreign missions.

Ridgway also reserved for his occupation headquarters the right to accredit any foreign diplomatic missions in Tokyo, in addition to those already established.

The supreme commander's act was hailed by the Japanese government in a foreign office announcement which stated:

"Except for the fact that agreements or treaties with foreign powers must be submitted to general headquarters for prior approval, Japan has fully recovered her right to negotiate with other countries."

FUTURE PEACE IS PLEDGED

Jap Premier Visits Pearl Harbor To Give Apology

HONOLULU, Sept. 13 — Japan's prime minister, Shigeru Yoshida, was flying home today after a one-day Hawaiian stopover during which he visited Pearl Harbor and apologized for his nation's past mistakes.

The premier and his party took off from Honolulu's airport at 10:12 o'clock last night for Tokyo where their plane is schedued to land at 8:45 p. m. Thursday (EST).

Shortly before the takeoff, Yoshida promised his country will always live in fidelity to the San Francisco peace treaty he signed last Saturday with 48 non-Communist nations.

The premier, the Japanese signer of the treaty, and his group paid a visit yesterday morning to America's Pearl Harbor naval base where the Japanese attack on Dec. 7, 1941, precipitated the United States into World War II.

• • •

IN A SPEECH at a reception given him by Honolulu's Japanese Chamber of Commerce last night, Yoshida said the peace pact "which today we hail with joy puts upon us stupendous responsibilities for the immediate future."

He said a reborn Japan's greatest responsibility was the overcoming of "wartime hatreds, suspicions and fears about Japan still lingering on in the world — especially among our neighbors in Asia," adding:

"We will do our utmost to repair the damage we have done and regain the world's good will and friendship."

No nation, the premier continued, needs fear Japan's commercial competition or armed aggression.

His country, he said, does not have the means of waging economic battles and "we are looking to additional American financial assistance and cooperation for the rebuilding of our shattered national economy."

False Crash Tale Probed

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 13—Police today searched the Alexandria area for a man who turned in a false report of a plane crash.

A telephone call from a man who identified himself as 'John Quilling" and said he was a salesman set off a widespread hunt yesterday for an Army C-47 that reportedly was "strewn over a farm."

A searching party and more than half a dozen planes covered surrounding swamp land without finling any sign of the supposed wreckage.

He Was Just Seeing Races

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Ex-Bookie King Harry Gross, laughing loud at all the fuss, was brought back to New York from the Atlantic City races today.

The dapper little gambler, hunted by police of the whole nation as a "fugitive witness" from Brooklyn's graft trial of 18 policemen, was picked up last night "betting a few bucks" at the Atlantic City race track.

He was missing 24 hours, but insisted he never was in hiding—just out for some relaxation.

Committee Seeks To Aid Teeth

Future Generations Would Reap Benefits

A move to develop healthier teeth in future Circleville generations was started Wednesday.

A committee of local dentists met with Ervin Leist, water department manager, to discuss the advisability of adding fluorine to the city water. The move is being sponsored by Circleville Kiwanis Club.

Although further study is planned, the committee indicated that it will probably approve the project.

Leist said Wednesday's discussion was somewhat limited because a representative of a Columbus firm supplying the chemical failed to show up. The representative had promised to be on hand with figures to show the cost of adding the chemical to water here.

• • •

FROM A STUDY of literature on hand, however, the committee estimated it would cost about $2,000 a year.

Leist said that funds for the treatment must come from the city's general fund rather than from water-works funds.

Circleville city council has on various occasions commented on the advisability of adding fluorine to the local water supply. Observers believe that the city fathers would look favorably on legislation to supply funds for the treatment.

The committee said that according to studies made in other cities throughout the county addition of fluorine to city water apparently has helped combat tooth decay.

"But," the dentists warned, 'the results will not be visible for 10 or 12 years. It would have little effect on the present generation. The beneficial results are to members of the younger generation."

The chemical makes teeth more resistant to decay by changing the chemical composition of the enamel, making it more resistant to acids.

Leist said another meeting of the local committee will be held probably next month.

"The meeting here will be

Pickaway Absent From List Of Disaster Areas

The Agriculture Department in Washington, D. C., Thursday named 15 Ohio counties as disaster areas for farm loan purposes, but Pickaway was not among them.

They are Champaign, Auglaise, Clark, Delaware, Guernsey, Mercer, Shelby, Union, Franklin, Belmont, Darke, Miami, Madison, Licking and Logan Counties.

Department officials said "serious drought conditions have damaged pasture, hay and crops in the area."

To be eligible for the loan, a farmer must certify he has suffered substantial damage from drought and that he cannot obtain credit from local sources.

111 Persons Take County Soil Conservation Air Tour

"I didn't realize there was so much soil erosion in Pickaway County."

The statement was made by a farmer following an air tour of a section of the county Wednesday. It was a typical reaction of many persons who climbed into four-place airplanes at Thomas airport west of Circleville for a 30-minute flight during the first annual Soil Conservation Air Tour.

For most of the 111 persons who took the tour it was the first time they had viewed their county from the air. And what they saw surprised them.

Each tour was approximately 55 miles long, the equivalent of more than 100 miles by highway.

James A. Muster, local soil conservationist, explained that the airplane was used because it offered a comprehensive view of a whole farm, or even several farms, at a glance.

"The relationships of each field to the complete farm, the relationship of several farms to the neighborhood group and of the group to the watershed or drainage area can be seen only from above," he said, adding:

"Since this land was cut from forest and made into crop producing fields we have viewed it merely in profile. The air tour provided the opportunity to see it face to face. Nitrogen deficiency, soil and drainage problems and good and bad land use practices are particularly visible from the airplane."

An astonishing thing to some of the farmers as they flew over their own acres was the visible proof that their fields had not been evenly limed. From aloft their crops were revealed in wide strips of richness separated by narrow bands of paucity.

"You can't see that from the ground," said one farmer. "Looking at my fields from the ground, I thought the crop growth was even. I didn't know it hadn't been limed properly until I went up in the plane."

Many of the farmers who took the tour admitted that they had been too busy sight-seeing to pay close attention to the things that could be done to improve their farm lands.

James Fortney, member of the air tour committee and president of the Ohio Flying Farmers, pointed out that while details might have been missed on this first trip, the farmers who took the air tour carried back a mental picture that will have future value.

"Next year is when this thing will really begin to pay off," he said. "Those same farmers will come back and take another look, comparing what they see then with what they saw today. Then they will begin to take action."

A few of the farmers were convinced after just one flight, and notified Muster they would like to sign up for a soil conservation program.

Muster said the Pickaway Soil Conservation District is now in its sixth year, and at present some 300 farms, totaling 45,000 acres, are cooperating with the district in putting conservation on the land.

"Pickaway County presents two distinct problems in conservation," he explained. "The flat land of the major portion has peculiar problems of drainage, proper rotations and agronomic practices. The balance of the county, with its rolling and steep lands, presents problems of erosion control along with good farming practices.

"Good practices in the major part of the county are perhaps not so spectacular, yet can be detected from the air by the green cover on the fields, quality of pasture and general condition of the buildings and farms. There is considerable erosion in this relatively level part of the area where proper practices are not in use."

Of the 111 persons who took the tour 36 were Future Farmers of America boys, the rest farmers with a sprinkling of Circleville residents. Five airplanes were used.

"On the whole," said Muster, "we were very satisfied with the turnout. Before the tour the committee members told each other that a crowd of 100 persons would be as many as we could hope or. We actually expected about 50 to show up."

Members of the air tour committee were:

Howard Thomas, in charge of the field; Lawrence Liston, procurement; James Fortney, tickets; J. Fred McCoy, flight starter; Robert Elsea, procurement of planes and insurance; Ralph May, finance; Don Jenkins, concessions; and Muster and Don Archer, coordinators.

DuPont Denies Cosmetics To Be Made Here

A Columbus report that the DuPont Co., which is purchasing nearly 500 acres of land south of Circleville, would manufacture cosmetics here was flatly denied Thursday by a spokesman for the huge chemical firm.

Although further study is planned, the committee indicated that it will probably approve the project.

Leist said Wednesday's discussion was somewhat limited because a representative of a Columbus firm supplying the chemical failed to show up. The representative had promised to be on hand with figures to show the cost of adding the chemical to water here.

• • •

FROM A STUDY of literature on hand, however, the committee estimated it would cost about $2,000 a year.

Leist said that funds for the treatment must come from the city's general fund rather than from water-works funds.

Circleville city council has on various occasions commented on the advisability of adding fluorine to the local water supply. Observers believe that the city fathers would look favorably on legislation to supply funds for the treatment.

The committee said that according to studies made in other cities throughout the county addition of fluorine to city water apparently has helped combat tooth decay.

"But," the dentists warned, 'the results will not be visible for 10 or 12 years. It would have little effect on the present generation. The beneficial results are to members of the younger generation."

The chemical makes teeth more resistant to decay by changing the chemical composition of the enamel, making it more resistant to acids.

Leist said another meeting of the local committee will be held probably next month.

"The meeting here will be

Pickaway Absent From List Of Disaster Areas

The Agriculture Department in Washington, D. C., Thursday named 15 Ohio counties as disaster areas for farm loan purposes, but Pickaway was not among them.

They are Champaign, Auglaise, Clark, Delaware, Guernsey, Mercer, Shelby, Union, Franklin, Belmont, Darke, Miami, Madison, Licking and Logan Counties.

Department officials said "serious drought conditions have damaged pasture, hay and crops in the area."

To be eligible for the loan, a farmer must certify he has suffered substantial damage from drought and that he cannot obtain credit from local sources.

111 Persons Take County Soil Conservation Air Tour

"I didn't realize there was so much soil erosion in Pickaway County."

The statement was made by a farmer following an air tour of a section of the county Wednesday. It was a typical reaction of many persons who climbed into four-place airplanes at Thomas airport west of Circleville for a 30-minute flight during the first annual Soil Conservation Air Tour.

For most of the 111 persons who took the tour it was the first time they had viewed their county from the air. And what they saw surprised them.

Each tour was approximately 55 miles long, the equivalent of more than 100 miles by highway.

James A. Muster, local soil conservationist, explained that the airplane was used because it offered a comprehensive view of a whole farm, or even several farms, at a glance.

"The relationships of each field to the complete farm, the relationship of several farms to the neighborhood group and of the group to the watershed or drainage area can be seen only from above," he said, adding:

"Since this land was cut from forest and made into crop producing fields we have viewed it merely in profile. The air tour provided the opportunity to see it face to face. Nitrogen deficiency, soil and drainage problems and good and bad land use practices are particularly visible from the airplane."

An astonishing thing to some of the farmers as they flew over their own acres was the visible proof that their fields had not been evenly limed. From aloft their crops were revealed in wide strips of richness separated by narrow bands of paucity.

"You can't see that from the ground," said one farmer. "Looking at my fields from the ground, I thought the crop growth was even. I didn't know it hadn't been limed properly until I went up in the plane."

Many of the farmers who took the tour admitted that they had been too busy sight-seeing to pay close attention to the things that could be done to improve their farm lands.

James Fortney, member of the air tour committee and president of the Ohio Flying Farmers, pointed out that while details might have been missed on this first trip, the farmers who took the air tour carried back a mental picture that will have future value.

"Next year is when this thing will really begin to pay off," he said. "Those same farmers will come back and take another look, comparing what they see then with what they saw today. Then they will begin to take action."

A few of the farmers were convinced after just one flight, and notified Muster they would like to sign up for a soil conservation program.

Muster said the Pickaway Soil Conservation District is now in its sixth year, and at present some 300 farms, totaling 45,000 acres, are cooperating with the district in putting conservation on the land.

"Pickaway County presents two distinct problems in conservation," he explained. "The flat land of the major portion has peculiar problems of drainage, proper rotations and agronomic practices. The balance of the county, with its rolling and steep lands, presents problems of erosion control along with good farming practices.

"Good practices in the major part of the county are perhaps not so spectacular, yet can be detected from the air by the green cover on the fields, quality of pasture and general condition of the buildings and farms. There is considerable erosion in this relatively level part of the area where proper practices are not in use."

Of the 111 persons who took the tour 36 were Future Farmers of America boys, the rest farmers with a sprinkling of Circleville residents. Five airplanes were used.

"On the whole," said Muster, "we were very satisfied with the turnout. Before the tour the committee members told each other that a crowd of 100 persons would be as many as we could hope or. We actually expected about 50 to show up."

Members of the air tour committee were:

Howard Thomas, in charge of the field; Lawrence Liston, procurement; James Fortney, tickets; J. Fred McCoy, flight starter; Robert Elsea, procurement of planes and insurance; Ralph May, finance; Don Jenkins, concessions; and Muster and Don Archer, coordinators.

Committee Seeks To Aid Teeth

held after the regular conference of the Ohio Water Works Association in Toledo the latter part of this month. A committee from the Ohio Dental Association is scheduled to attend the conference to discuss fluordination of water in Ohio's water supplies.

* * *

"THE RESULTS of this will be studied by the local committee."

Leist said that on a national scale the cost of the chemical ranges from five cents to 15 cents per person per year. And depending on the cost of the chemical it costs from 76 cents to $2.15 per million gallons of water treated.

He said it is dependent on the cost of the chemical because different chemicals, all of them containing iron fluorine, can be used to accomplish the same result.

Fluorine is of the same chemical family as bromine, chlorine and iodine.

"Home water softeners will not remove this chemical," Leist said. 'It requires careful handling, because too much of it added to the water can cause mottling stains on the teeth.

"As a matter of fact, that is how it was discovered. In a Texas community persons were visiting their dentists seeking to have brown mottling stains removed from their teeth.

* * *

"IT WAS discovered that the mottling was caused by too much fluorine naturally present in the water they were drinking.

"But these same people had remarkably few tooth cavities."

Leist said Circleville already has some fluroine naturally present in its water.

"It is present here in the proportion of three tenths of a part per million gallons. Correct dosage is from one part to one and a half parts," he said.

Members of the committee meeting here Wednesday were Richard Morris, representing Kiwanis Club; Drs. William Rickey, Richard Samuel and G. D. Phillips, dentists. Rickey and Samuels also are Kiwanians.

Two Motorists Cited For Bus Passing Error

Two men have been fined a total of $35 and costs in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for passing Pickaway County school buses which were stopped to load or unload youngsters.

Edward Skibbe, 29, of Louisiana, was fined $10 and costs for passing a Deercreek Township bus on Route 22.

Skibbe was arrested later on Route 104 by Deputies James Diltz and Jack Dewey and was fined on an affidavit filed by Oscar Atwood, driver of the bus.

Highway Patrol To Assist In Truck Campaign

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13 — The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has announced a new coordinated plan whereby the Ohio Highway Patrol will aid in enforcing PUCO regulations on trucking.

The commission and the state highway department reached agreement on the program in a conference attended by the three PUCO commissioners, Highway Director Ted J. Kauer and Col. George Mingle, chief of the patrol.

A new law, which goes into effect today, requires that the patrol notify PUCO of all trucking arrests.

The PUCO plans to use patrol reports as the basis for action against offending truckers. In some instances it may mean suspension or revocation of operating certificates.

Highway patrolman will use a check list of major violations of PUCO orders in the initial phase of the program to determine the best approach to more strict enforcement of trucking laws.

Commissioner Ralph Winter pointed out that the new system must provide for stiffer penalties. He noted that some truckers consider the fines of justice of the peace courts as merely part of normal operating expenses.

Chandler Says Lausche Refuses Baseball Job

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13 — Ex-Baseball Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler thinks the club owners are going to have trouble finding the right man for the commissioner's job unless they give the new boss more rein than they now are willing to do.

Happy said Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio, a number one candidate for the baseball post, has turned it down. Chandler declared:

"Governor Lausche turned it down because they wouldn't change the terms of the commissioner's contract without a unanimous vote and all 16 club owners will never agree to anything. So now they are down to one of their own."

Happy apparently was referring to Ford Frick, National League president, and Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds.

Senator Asks Ban On Japan Red China Pact

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — A Senate supporter of the Japanese peace treaty today circulated a petition demanding that Japan be kept from entering into any agreements with Communist China.

The petition is sponsored by Sen. Knowland, (R) Cal., who is reported to have 30 of his colleagues' signatures already. Knowland refused to disclose the contents of his petition or to say whether it will be filed with the State Department or the United Nations.

One of those who signed the petition said it put signers on record as opposing either bilateral agreements between the Peiping regime and Japan or the admission of Red China into the UN.

Knowland is believed to be trying to allay the fears of some senators that ratification of the treaty will enable the Japanese to deal with the Peiping regime.

The California Republican is one of the Senate's firmest supporters of the treaty. He has proposed that the Senate return to Washington for a special session before Jan. 1 to ratify it, unless that is done before adjournment, tentatively set for Oct. 1.

Senate Majority Leader McFarland, (D) Ariz., said he sees no reason why the adjournment "target" date of Oct. 1 should interfere with the ratification. But he pointed out that the Foreign Relations Committee will have to approve the treaty first.

Highway Patrol To Assist In Truck Campaign

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13 — The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has announced a new coordinated plan whereby the Ohio Highway Patrol will aid in enforcing PUCO regulations on trucking.

The commission and the state highway department reached agreement on the program in a conference attended by the three PUCO commissioners, Highway Director Ted J. Kauer and Col. George Mingle, chief of the patrol.

A new law, which goes into effect today, requires that the patrol notify PUCO of all trucking arrests.

The PUCO plans to use patrol reports as the basis for action against offending truckers. In some instances it may mean suspension or revocation of operating certificates.

Highway patrolman will use a check list of major violations of PUCO orders in the initial phase of the program to determine the best approach to more strict enforcement of trucking laws.

Commissioner Ralph Winter pointed out that the new system must provide for stiffer penalties. He noted that some truckers consider the fines of justice of the peace courts as merely part of normal operating expenses.

Greek Control Being Sought

ATHENS, Sept. 13—Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, whose Greek Rally Party has emerged as the largest in Greece, demanded today that Premier Sophocles Venizelos turn over to him the reins of government.

Papagos based his claim on the 115 seats won by his movement in Sunday's national elections although it is less than a majority of the 250 to 270 seats in the Greek parliament.

4 Men Named As Deputies

Four men have been appointed Pickaway County deputy sheriffs to serve without pay until the first Monday in January, 1953, by Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

The four are Dan L. Eitel, Russell D. Wardell, Harry N. Puffinbarger and Ted F. Corcoran.

Chandler Says Lausche Refuses Baseball Job

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13 — Ex-Baseball Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler thinks the club owners are going to have trouble finding the right man for the commissioner's job unless they give the new boss more rein than they now are willing to do.

Happy said Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio, a number one candidate for the baseball post, has turned it down. Chandler declared:

"Governor Lausche turned it down because they wouldn't change the terms of the commissioner's contract without a unanimous vote and all 16 club owners will never agree to anything. So now they are down to one of their own."

Happy apparently was referring to Ford Frick, National League president, and Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds.

Undertaker Asks For New Trial

BARTOW, Fla., Sept. 13—Defense attorneys said today they will demand a new trial for A. Elwood North, Bartow undertaker convicted of strangling a wealthy widow who left him all her property.

North faces death in the electric chair under a first degree murder verdict returned yesterday by a jury after one hour and 45 minutes of deliberation.

He was convicted of beating and choking to death Mrs. Betty Albritton, 57, whose battered body was dug up by request of suspicious relatives.

Aussie Scientist Claims U.S. Snub

MELBOURNE, Sept. 13 — A top Australian atomic scientist said today he has cancelled plans to visit the United States because of the American State Department's delay in granting him a visa.

Prof. Marcus Oliphant said he has decided not to attend a conference of nuclear physicists in Chicago because of the delay.

An official of the U. S. consulate in Sydney declared:

"The State Department is studying the case."

Local Engineer Hurt In Fall

Montford C. Kirkwood of 520 North Court street was reported in "fairly good" condition Thursday in White Cross hospital after suffering a fractured back and fractured skull.

Kirkwood was injured at about noon Wednesday while at work as a stationary engineer in the Surface Combustion Co. in Columbus.

The Circleville man reportedly was atop a six-foot scaffolding, painting a coal hopper when the mishap happened. He toppled backwards from the scaffolding onto a cement floor.

Kirkwood is in room 322 in the Columbus hosital.

Senator Asks Ban On Japan Red China Pact

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — A Senate supporter of the Japanese peace treaty today circulated a petition demanding that Japan be kept from entering into any agreements with Communist China.

The petition is sponsored by Sen. Knowland, (R) Cal., who is reported to have 30 of his colleagues' signatures already. Knowland refused to disclose the contents of his petition or to say whether it will be filed with the State Department or the United Nations.

One of those who signed the petition said it put signers on record as opposing either bilateral agreements between the Peiping regime and Japan or the admission of Red China into the UN.

Knowland is believed to be trying to allay the fears of some senators that ratification of the treaty will enable the Japanese to deal with the Peiping regime.

The California Republican is one of the Senate's firmest supporters of the treaty. He has proposed that the Senate return to Washington for a special session before Jan. 1 to ratify it, unles that is done before adjournment, tentatively set for Oct. 1.

Senate Majority Leader McFarland, (D) Ariz., said he sees no reason why the adjournment "target" date of Oct. 1 should interfere with the ratification. But he pointed out that the Foreign Relations Committee will have to approve the treaty first.

Tobacco Tycoon Lauds Opportunities In U.S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Joseph Kolodny is president of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors, the National Tax Council for Tobacco Interests and the Jersey City Tobacco Co.

"But I can't understand a thing those tobacco auctioneers say," he complained recently. "I go south to the auctions, and the mumbo-jumbo begins and everyone else knows what the auctioneers mean. But I don't.' He added:

"But they can't understand me, either."

When the auctioneers' southern Esperanto meets up with the Kolodny Polish accent, it's a draw. For the tobacco magnate, who is also president of the National Association of Wholesalers and chairman of the Wholesale Advisory Committee of the U. S. Department of Commerce, is a classic example of the foreign-born boy who made good in the USA.

After 32 years in the U. S., Kolodny's English is fluent and grammatically perfect, but he has never been able to shake the accent.

* * *

"I DISLIKE rags-to-riches stories," he said. A fine looking man, with thick, dark hair, dark eyes and a quick sense of humor, he squirmed uncomfortably in his tailor-made suit and shirt as he continued, "but immigrants are always poor.

"I was 17 when I came here from Poland in 1919. I think the legal requirement to enter the country in those days was $7.50, so I must have had that much in my pocket.

"It was easy to find a job as an errand boy at $2.50 a week. I managed to live. The first thing I did was enter a night school to learn English.

"You know, so few people really appreciate the opportunities in this country for free, public education for all I went to night schools, and then to high school and finally to City College and to New York university.

"And no one ever embarrassed me because all this education was free!" And he still marvels at that.

"But now the universities ask me to lecture to their classes in business administration. I am tickled to death to do it. In a way, it's reciprocation."

Six years after Kolodny arrived in America, he went to work as a shipping clerk with the Jersey City Tobacco Co. In 1[illegible], he bought the firm, lock, stock and barrel. He still owns and operates it, but it was merely a stepping stone to his present leadership in the American tobacco industry and to his position as an authority in the wholesale field.

* * *

THIS IMMIGRANT, who found the U. S. a land of endless opportunity 32 years ago, thinks people are crazy to say there is no opportunity left in this golden land.

"There is all the opportunity in the world," he said, vigorously. "I do not subscribe to the claim that this country lacks opportunity or ever will.

"It's all around us. There are boundless opportunities. We can't all be Henry Fords. But the Henry Fords need innumerable talented men of top quality around them. And it isn't bad to be a vice-president to Henry Ford, is it? The economic world has changed, but the opportunities are still there, bright as ever."

Constitutional Convention Eyed

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13—Three sub-committees are functioning today to aid Ohioans in determining whether there should be a constitutional convention to revamp the state constitution in 1953.

The question comes before the voters automatically in November, 1952, as it does every 20 years.

The consitutional convention committee of the Ohio program Commission set up three subcommittees Tuesday: One to prepare arguments pro and con, one to prepare publicity to inform Ohioans of the facts of a constitutional convention, and a third to prepare bills for the legislature if the convention should be approved.

DEFENSE NEEDS CITED

U.S. Hoping To Salvage 125 Sunken Cargo Ships

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—The government prepared today to undertake the greatest salvage operation of its kind on record, the raising of war-sunk merchant ships to provide materials for the defense program.

The Maritime Commission has marked 125 of these "war ghosts", and intends to have as many of them raised as proves practicable. Nearly all were sunk by German submarines during World War II in shallow Atlantic, Gulf and Caribbean waters.

From the barnacle-covered steel hills and the water-soaked cargos, the government hopes to recover large quantities of scrap steel to help meet defense steel production goals, as well as precious copper, tin, and ores of other critical metals—such as manganese, aluminum and antimony.

Other things which have been protected from the water will be recoverable, including oil and aviation gasoline in undamaged drums. But the oil in tankers, automobiles, planes, and the like, will be a complete loss, of course.

* * *

SOME OF THE war victims listed for salvage bore famous names. Among them are the Andrew Jackson, the John Hancock, the Robert E. Lee, and the Nathaniel Hawthorne, all sunk in 1942 in the waters of the South Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico.

Contracts are to let to salvage operators this month for raising three ships as a test to determine what may be expected with regard to the others.

Bids will be opened on the following dates for salvaging these ships:

Sept. 18, the Tanker Halsey, sunk in 48 feet of water off the coast of Florida in 1942; Sept. 19, the cargo ship Crown City, which ran aground off Nome, Alaska, in 1942, and is now partly awash, and Sept. 25, the Benjamin Bruster, torpedoed in 1942 in 48 feet of water off the Louisiana coast.

Maritime Commission officials said it may take two years to complete the salvage program. While all of the 125 are in shallow water, they do not know how many, or what part of any ship, may be salvaged.

Salvage operations, they point out, are very expensive. A ship may have sunk in a soft bottom. It may be partly or totally covered with silt. Under the impact of sea currents, it may have drifted a mile or two from the point where it went down.

In some cases, the sunken wrecks were sea hazards, and have been demolished to a depth below the water line where they are not a peril to ocean traffic.

The main object in raising the vessels is to provide scrap steel for steel mills. A severe shortage of scrap threatens defense steel production goals.

King Facing Long Idleness

LONDON, Sept. 13 — A long convalescence reportedly loomed today for ailing King George VI of England and a possible second cancellation of his once-deferred plan to visit Australia.

The monarch is interrupting his vacation at Balmoral Castle in Scotland this weekend to return to London and further examination of his lung inflammation.

The London Daily Express, which said the king is suffering from a blocking of one of the air tubes to his lungs, termed the ailment "typical pneumonia."

Top tennis award for women is the Wightman cup.

Wood Toys Due Under Yule Tree

1951 Prices Slated To Be Increased

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — Children will find more wooden toys under the Christmas tree this year, but their parents will pay "slightly higher" prices when they help Santa Claus pick out the playthings.

Government officials made these predictions today on the basis of information from the toy industry.

Officials who allocate material also said metal toys may be in short supply this Yuletide. They added that "more manufacturers than we expected have converted to wood."

The Office of Price Stabilization said in "nine out of ten cases" manufacturers' prices will be higher this year than last. Any increase at the plant level will be passed along to the public at the store counter.

* * *

OPS SAID MANY producers raised prices between the outbreak of the Korean war and the general price freeze of last Jan. 26. Prices for this year's Christmas toys were established by that freeze because the industry works months ahead to fill orders.

Prices may even be higher next year, it was learned. OPS explained that toy makers then will be controlled by the agency's general manufacturers' ceiling regulation.

An agency spokesman said "quite a few manufacturers have asked for price increases under that order and have been given a go ahead."

Nearly all the toys to be offered for sale this Christmas shopping season were contracted for last March at the industry's annual fair. OPS' manufacturers order had not been issued at that time and freeze prices still prevailed.

Higher prices authorized by the manufacturers' regulation have not been put into effect because of commitments made at the fair. But one government official predicted that "toward the tail end of the year, some manufacturers may take advantage of those price increases."

However, he pointed out, those price hikes will not affect toys sold this Christmas because 80 percent of the 1951 supply already has been shipped.

Rug Company Cuts Prices

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Alexander Smith, Inc., yesterday announced an immediate ten percent reduction in carpet and rug prices to meet competitive conditions in the industry.

A spokesman for the company said reduced prices were made possible by currently lower quotations for foreign carpet wools. At the same time, he cautioned that there was "no possibility at this time of any further reductions in the prices of our finished goods during the balance of the year."

James Fortney, Ohio Flying Farmer President, Sold On Air Travel

James Fortney of Orient Route 1 has been elected president of the Ohio Flying Farmers.

There are approximately 400 members in the organization, Fortney said, adding that of these only about 12 are Pickaway Countians.

He was elected head of the group in August, will remain in office one year.

An aviation enthusiast, Fortney believes that flying a plane is far safer than traveling by auto.

"On the ground when two cars are heading for collision, both drivers usually must become aware of the situation in order to avoid it. But in the air it is necessary only to be 50 percent right. If one pilot sees the error and the other doesn't, the one who sees it can make the proper correction and it will be avoided. He has all the space he wants to maneuver in.

"Again, when a plane goes out of control the pilot usually has plenty of time to make a correction. But on the ground a motorist does not have that time. His car has usually collided with a tree or a utility pole by the time he has it all thought out."

Fortney, who operates a farm in Darby Township, believes the airplane can be a valuable ally to the farmer if properly used.

"There are things that can be seen at a glance from the air that would take much longer to find from the ground.

"Some farming errors are never caught from the ground. The farmer doesn't know they exist. Yet if he took one flight over his land, he would see them immediately."

Effort Is Made To Unionize Mine

NEW LEXINGTON, Sept. 13—A United Mine Workers drive is underway today to unionize the Bankes Coal Co. near Roseville.

Some 50 union pickets moved in on the Bankes works yesterday from various mines in the Crooksville district. There was no violence in the first day of picketing. However, several trucks were halted at the mine entrance.

4 Sentences Facing Man

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13 — Joseph Russo, 43, is being held in Cuyahoga County jail today awaiting transfer to prison to serve a life term and three other sentences.

Russo, acting as his own attorney in the case, was sentenced to terms totaling 10 or more years in Ohio Penitentiary.

Russo was found guilty of safecracking, shooting at police, owning burglar tools and safe-tampering. These earned him life, one to five years and one to 20, respectively.

Scottish Lord Woos Princess?

LONDON, Sept. 13—The London Evening Star reported a "dark horse" in the race for Princess Margaret's hand today —a Scottish nobleman with close connections to the British royal family.

The newspaper said Scottish society circles are openly discussing the princess' growing friendship for 22-year-old Lord Carnegie, son and heir to the Earl of Southesk and to the dukedom of Fife, one of the greatest properties in Scotland.

Husband Held

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13—Teddy Powell, 30, and his wife, Ada Mae, 25, of Cincinnati begin a term of life imprisonment today for the fatal beating of their three-year-old nephew.

Criminal Court Judge Charles E. Weber passed sentence yesterday after convicting the pair of charges of second degree murder in the beating of William Lee Gardner June 29.

Wood Toys Due Under Yule Tree

1951 Prices Slated To Be Increased

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — Children will find more wooden toys under the Christmas tree this year, but their parents will pay "slightly higher" prices when they help Santa Claus pick out the playthings.

Government officials made these predictions today on the basis of information from the toy industry.

Officials who allocate material also said metal toys may be in short supply this Yuletide. They added that "more manufacturers than we expected have converted to wood."

The Office of Price Stabilization said in "nine out of ten cases" manufacturers' prices will be higher this year than last. Any increase at the plant level will be passed along to the public at the store counter.

* * *

OPS SAID MANY producers raised prices between the outbreak of the Korean war and the general price freeze of last Jan. 26. Prices for this year's Christmas toys were established by that freeze because the industry works months ahead to fill orders.

Prices may even be higher next year, it was learned. OPS explained that toy makers then will be controlled by the agency's general manufacturers' ceiling regulation.

An agency spokesman said "quite a few manufacturers have asked for price increases under that order and have been given a go ahead."

Nearly all the toys to be offered for sale this Christmas shopping season were contracted for last March at the industry's annual fair. OPS' manufacturers order had not been issued at that time and freeze prices still prevailed.

Higher prices authorized by the manufacturers' regulation have not been put into effect because of commitments made at the fair. But one government official predicted that "toward the tail end of the year, some manufacturers may take advantage of those price increases."

However, he pointed out, those price hikes will not affect toys sold this Christmas because 80 percent of the 1951 supply already has been shipped.

Rug Company Cuts Prices

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Alexander Smith, Inc., yesterday announced an immediate ten percent reduction in carpet and rug prices to meet competitive conditions in the industry.

A spokesman for the company said reduced prices were made possible by currently lower quotations for foreign carpet wools. At the same time, he cautioned that there was "no possibility at this time of any further reductions in the prices of our finished goods during the balance of the year."

James Fortney, Ohio Flying Farmer President, Sold On Air Travel

James Fortney of Orient Route 1 has been elected president of the Ohio Flying Farmers.

There are approximately 400 members in the organization, Fortney said, adding that of these only about 12 are Pickaway Countians.

He was elected head of the group in August, will remain in office one year.

An aviation enthusiast, Fortney believes that flying a plane is far safer than traveling by auto.

"On the ground when two cars are heading for collision, both drivers usually must become aware of the situation in order to avoid it. But in the air it is necessary only to be 50 percent right. If one pilot sees the error and the other doesn't, the one who sees it can make the proper correction and it will be avoided. He has all the space he wants to maneuver in.

"Again, when a plane goes out of control the pilot usually has plenty of time to make a correction. But on the ground a motorist does not have that time. His car has usually collided with a tree or a utility pole by the time he has it all thought out."

Fortney, who operates a farm in Darby Township, believes the airplane can be a valuable ally to the farmer if properly used.

"There are things that can be seen at a glance from the air that would take much longer to find from the ground.

"Some farming errors are never caught from the ground. The farmer doesn't know they exist. Yet if he took one flight over his land, he would see them immediately."

Effort Is Made To Unionize Mine

NEW LEXINGTON, Sept. 13—A United Mine Workers drive is underway today to unionize the Bankes Coal Co. near Roseville.

Some 50 union pickets moved in on the Bankes works yesterday from various mines in the Crooksville district. There was no violence in the first day of picketing. However, several trucks were halted at the mine entrance.

4 Sentences Facing Man

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13 — Joseph Russo, 43, is being held in Cuyahoga County jail today awaiting transfer to prison to serve a life term and three other sentences.

Russo, acting as his own attorney in the case, was sentenced to terms totaling 10 or more years in Ohio Penitentiary.

Russo was found guilty of safecracking, shooting at police, owning burglar tools and safe-tampering. These earned him life, one to five years and one to 20, respectively.

Scottish Lord Woos Princess?

LONDON, Sept. 13—The London Evening Star reported a "dark horse" in the race for Princess Margaret's hand today —a Scottish nobleman with close connections to the British royal family.

The newspaper said Scottish society circles are openly discussing the princess' growing friendship for 22-year-old Lord Carnegie, son and heir to the Earl of Southesk and to the dukedom of Fife, one of the greatest properties in Scotland.

Husband Held

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13—Teddy Powell, 30, and his wife, Ada Mae, 25, of Cincinnati begin a term of life imprisonment today for the fatal beating of their three-year-old nephew.

Criminal Court Judge Charles E. Weber passed sentence yesterday after convicting the pair of charges of second degree murder in the beating of William Lee Gardner June 29.

STALIN'S DESTINY

THE National Geographic Society has been digging up interesting facts concerning dictators, old and new, and has learned that the breed hasn't changed since the beginning of history.

The dictator business goes back at least 5,000 years, to Egypt's old kingdom, where great monuments were erected as tombs for passing rulers. The Sphinx of Egypt still stands as a symbol of the birth of dictatorship, 3,000 years before the coming of Christ.

Present-day dictators seem to be following the rules laid down by tyrants of old. About 2,000 B. C. Amenemhet I came on the scene, and he seems to have been a sort of early-day Stalin so far as his philosophy of government was concerned.

Old Amenemhet was a tough cookie, who told his son who was to succeed him:

"That thou mayest be king of the earth harden thyself against all subordinates. The people give heed to him who terrorizes them. Approach them not alone. Fill not thy heart with a brother. Know not a friend."

There's the pattern for dictatorship, and it hasn't changed throughout the ages. Old Amenemhet and Stalin are of the same breed, although 4,000 years have separated their lives. Conqueror has followed conqueror throughout history, all to pass into oblivion, giving nothing to the world.

Stalin's destiny is forecast throughout the pages of history.

INFLATION AND SAVINGS

LOSS of purchasing power through inflation is serious to the average citizen, but that is not the only penalty to be paid as a result of cheapening of the currency. Money held in savings accounts, bonds, life insurance and other investments has lost nearly half its value in the last 10 years.

Because such investments are almost invariably insurance against old age their depletion can be tragic for those who formerly felt secure because of them.

The Federal Reserve Board has been looking into the nature of such investments to discover if there has been a lessening in the purchases of securities of known dollar value in favor of those of a speculative character. It was learned, however, that American citizens are still buying those securities which have a fixed dollar value, and are not interested to a noticeable degree in those which offer a possible speculative profit, or which would rise or fall in value with the fluctuation of the currency.

Scientists have been meeting in London to establish a route to the moon. Presumably all the turns will be marked, and there will be a hamburger oases along the way in case the children get hungry.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Recently, we motored toward Maine. First we went to a little place called Sturbridge where a New England village of the Eighteenth Century has been reconstructed within its proper setting. There we lunched and the trip had an unexpectedly good start.

Then we motored to Concord, to the city of Emerson and Hawthorne and the irrepressible Alcotts. My little girl was principally interested in "Little Women" and my wife in the chaste houses of New England.

Hawthorne pervades this area. Concord, Salem, Stockbridge—he seems to have left his mark wherever he lived; and to see a chair on which Emerson sat and Hawthorne wrote is to get at the very roots of things American.

We were on our way to York Harbor, Maine, where I was to do a chore of speech-making for my friend, Marion Martin. Unfortunately, I missed Portsmouth on this trip. No city has more charming early American houses than Portsmouth, except Salem, and Charleston, S. C. To Portsmouth's houses, even a tourist must devote a week; that is, if the tourist finds beautiful homes interesting and exciting and if his imagination can make him feel the lives of our progenitors.

For a house bespeaks personality. That is never true of a city apartment or of those banged together affairs with all modern conveniences but no lived-in atmosphere. Show me what kind of homes men build for their families, and I can almost sense their ideals of life. That, in a simpler and even truer way, my little girl said about Louisa May Alcott's home in Concord, and about the house of the seven gables in Salem where Hawthorne's cousin, Susan Ingersoll, lived.

We bedded down in Salem at the Hawthorne hotel, which the local citizens built just off the square. But we could not remain indoors with so much beauty about us. So we trudged through the night, looking at the outsides of these unbelievably beautiful houses, some of which we would visit the next day.

The builders of these homes, many dead a century or so, were known to me with such intimacy as comes from China coast fables. For many of them were the masters and supercargoes of the clipper ships which sailed from Salem to Asia when this nation was young, bringing back with them silks and teas and spices to enrich the lives of our people.

Their homes speak eloquently of their great love for country and family. Only such as dreamed of home on the vast and tumultuous seas, as they rounded the cape or sailed across the expansive Pacific, could put such affection into the place to which, wind and weather being willing, they would one day return. The doors of Chestnut street are a holiday of affection for home. And in Salem all the doors of the old houses point to the sea, as Moslems pray facing toward Mecca. In the Essex Institute, it is possible to spend hours, perhaps years, tracing out the stories of these courageous traders.

Standard of living in Russia is reported to be falling, which brings up the question: Just how low is low?

The best suggestion made to date in regard to further peace proposals from Russia is that they be opened under water.

SYNOPSIS

Jim Eliot with a brilliant war record and a broken marriage behind him, settles in a small southern city of his native USA. Here he begins to succeed as a realtor. Here he meets handsome, popular, career-girl Laura Blayde, a divorcee. Jim accompanies Laura to a dinner party at the home of her in-laws, Harrison and Eden Blayde, their teen-age daughter Anne, and young son Deke. These Blaydes live far beyond their means and are headed for financial disaster.

CHAPTER THREE

THE IGLEHARTS arrived first, as usual, Ramsay looking polished and alert as always, Joan lively and slightly disheveled. She greeted Harrison shrilly, gave a hoot of laughter as she freed herself from the torn lining of a velvet evening wrap.

"No, I won't go up," she said. "Throw the thing down anywhere. My beauty doesn't depend on first aid—wonderful to be ugly, you don't have to bother."

Harrison hung the limp velvet affair in the hall closet. "Toss over your hat, Ramsay. Sit down, Eden will be here in a minute."

"Mac Fowler was right behind us," Ramsay said.

Joan Iglehart flung herself onto the deepest couch and asked "How come Mac is stepping out so gaily lately? Has Martha lost her grip on the leash?"

Ramsay made a prim, reproving mouth. "Martha," he remarked, "happens to be a broad-minded and reasonable woman. She knows that nothing is so depressing to a man as an invalid wife and she has the good sense to make Mac go out without her."

"That's really new—to think Martha as broad-minded," cooed Joan dryly. "Anyway she must have something—all the men rush to defend her."

"I didn't know Martha needed defense," Harrison said. "She's not having any fun. Her eyesight's failing now, Mac told me, and they've had to increase the insulin shots."

Joan shuddered, pouted. "The ghastly things that can happen to people!"

The judge arrived wearing no hat. He was taller than any of them and immediately the most relaxed and comfortable person in the room. He said, "Pretty dress, Eden. Suits you. Sit down, Ramsay. I'm not holding court."

Suddenly Harrison remembered his traffic-violation ticket. He had a desire to talk to Mac Fowler about the black out tonight but he knew what Mac would say, what any of them would say. "Harrison, I'd see Doctor Cannon if I were you. Wise to check up now and then."

A small cold fear grew and tightened under Harrison's breastbone. He put it down sternly. He couldn't be sick—there wasn't time.

Arriving, Laura said, "Hi, folks! This is Jim Eliot."

Eden shook hands with this tall stranger, aware of her daughter Anne at the back of the hall, aware with swift maternal intuition of Anne's startled, admiring eyes.

Anne said, "Hello, Aunt Laura. What a perfectly adorable, goofy hat!"

"Isn't it silly and lovely?" Laura jerked off the hat, perched it on Anne's blonde head, hugging the girl to her. "This is Anne, Jim," Laura said. "Isn't she precious? Eden, you look wonderful, but then you always do. All of you must like Jim now. He's really special and he's staying in town."

"Don't mind Laura—she was weaned on firecrackers and seltzer water." Harrison steered the tall man into the living room. "These are the Igleharts—Ramsay and Joanie."

Joan shrieked, "Don't bring that creature near me! I hate him. He told me this morning he couldn't sell my little farm."

"I merely said," countered Eliot coolly, "that some properties were difficult to move."

Laura and Anne were carrying on a rapid conversation in low tones, and Eden Blayde, temporarily static on a chair near the door, found herself watching them uneasily. Anne was fascinated by Laura and Eden was not happy about it. Laura had married John Blayde, Harrison's younger brother, and lived with him for four years till the war took him to Casablanca and Italy, and ultimately, without perceptible ill feeling on either side, out of her life.

John had come home helplessly in love with a big, blonde, placid WAC, and without rancor or unseemly ado Laura had let him go.

"Mother—" Anne lifted her voice —"Aunt Laura thinks she may go up to the lake over the week end. She wants me to go with her."

"We'll see, dear," Eden evaded.

"It will be Anne's last chance for a holiday before she goes back to school," Laura put in. "I think we could have fun."

"Oh, Mother, I want to go!" Anne exclaimed.

With relief Eden heard the chimes. She slipped back into the kitchen, summoning Harrison with a flicked finger.

"Who is this guy Laura brought in?" Harrison asked.

"All I know is that he's in real estate and married and not divorced and that his name is Eliot. Harrie, Laura's your family—I don't want to be small-minded, but I don't want Anne going on trips with Laura. After all, even if there's nothing tangible but raised eyebrows, we can't have that for Anne!"

Harrison drew his brows together. "I think Anne's safe. But she needn't go if you don't want her to."

"But you never back me up—not when it's Laura! Go ahead, Imogene. Then come back and put the salad on the service plates—"

"Yas'm."

Judge Fowler was making a sort of speech when they went back to the living room. "I'd like to see the age limit raised for drivers' licenses. We don't permit an adolescent to control property, make contracts, or act otherwise independently of authority, so why should we turn him loose with tons of steel and power to work destruction?"

Anne wailed, "Oh, no! You mean I'd have to wait till I'm twenty-one to drive the car?"

The judge answered, "For well-behaved young ladies like you, Anne, I'd make an exception. But don't let me catch you playing tag with fenders or driving five on the front seat and seven behind, like the crowd they brought into court yesterday."

Above the murmur of voices at table Eden heard Mac Fowler saying to Harrison, "Only yesterday a fellow asked me why the police didn't do something about crime in this town and let the kids alone?"

Anne's cheeks were hot and pink. "Well, why don't they?" she demanded. "You have to be adult before you can break the law . . ."

Laura squeezed her arm. "You've got a crusader growing up, Harrie. You go to it, Anne, turn the world upside down. Maybe it looks prettier on the bottom—anyway it couldn't look worse."

Across the table Laura was sharing some quiet joke with Bill Davis, a situation that Sue broke up by a blunt announcement.

"I suppose you've heard, Laura, that Johnny's wife is expecting? Does that make you a stepmother or something?"

Judge Fowler looked at Laura's swiftly stricken face with paternal gentleness. "It makes Laura the same bright, free soul she has always been," he remarked. "Perhaps they'll invite Laura to be a godmother."

"Whoops—Laura a godmother!" exploded Joan. "You have to promise to cherish them till death do you part, Laura."

"That's the marriage ceremony," Bill protested. "That's the joker they hang on you. Godmothers have to send the infant silver cups and stuff."

Harrison was seeing the quick glint of pain that showed in Laura's blue eyes. Laura had never got over Johnny, no matter how brave a show she put on. Her recklessness, the follies Eden was always deploring, Harrison knew, were only so many desperate gestures to hide and assuage a hurt.

Laura said a trifle hoarsely, "Johnny's wife is a fine person, the quiet, homebody type, definitely different from me. This baby is a low trick though. I did want one, but Johnny said no."

"Why does anybody want to bring children into a world like this?" demanded Sue Davis, her voice edging into defensiveness." "Cold war, rotten politics, all the schools full of radicals and no respect for anything any more."

"The kids," remarked Bill, "are acquired to pay off this whopping debt. Look at Anne here. She's already mortgaged to her eyebrows and the red ink growing deeper every day."

Judge Fowler interposed quietly, "You forget, Bill, that our national income is also increasing tremendously along with the population. Automatically the matter of debt will solve itself."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The next several weeks may be dull, but November promises to be interesting. . .income taxes, gasoline taxes, cigaret taxes and many other taxes go up on the first and later in the month we will give thanks for all our blessings.

But the tax proposed on savings banks and building and loan associations is not to be construed as a tax on thrift; you can't tax something which has gone the way of the horse cars.

Savings accounts now paying a robust one and one-half or two percent should drop to about half of one percent when the new tax comes in. This should restore the popularity of the mattress as a receiving vault for savings, if any.

Anyway, this will give us our 18th straight glorious year of increased government spending and increasing taxes. Is there anyone who would like to try for 36?

The British Labor government has tried all the tax paths ahead of us and is netting less and less return on its more and more policies but fortunately they have a rich uncle.

Or at least he looks rich until you examine the red ink side of his books.

MARCH OF EVENTS

Princess Elizabeth's Visit Poses Problem | Can Welcome Be Held Without Big Fanfare?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—It is going to be hard to keep the visit here next month of British Princess Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, within the limited bounds they have requested.

Although planned only as a brief side tour after the full-dress coast-to-coast state tour that the royal couple will pay to Canada, it somehow always is compared here with the fabulous 1939 visit of the King and Queen of England.

Princess Elizabeth

Serving as host to VIPs from abroad has become a habit which the nation's capital adores. A bespangled tour down Pennsylvania avenue toward the White House, flanked by motorcycle cops twenty abreast from curb to curb, now is as much a welcoming badge for Uncle Sam as a New York ticker tape reception.

Washington's visitors are chiefly political, and their calls either are "informal" or state occasions. Technically, it decides the way the welcome mat is rolled out, but actually the magnitude of the personality determines the hullabaloo.

Elizabeth's visit was to be so casual, officially speaking, that President Truman sent her little more than a notice that she would be welcome, which according to diplomatic etiquette, she may never accept officially, lest that be too elaborate.

The presidential plane, Independence, probably will fetch the royal couple to Washington, where they will be Blair House guests for several days beginning Oct. 2(

● TRUMAN DINNER—A dinner for only about 20 guests will be given by the Trumans, followed by a return dinner at the Canadian embassy. Then there will be a garden party at the British embassy, which sounds prim, but could assume the proportions of a circus like that 1939 affair for the royal family.

The next scheduled full-dress state visit will be that of Holland's Queen Juliana and her consort, Prince Bernhard, early in 1952 when the renovated White House with its new suite for national guests will be ready.

The atmosphere here usually forecasts when a visit will be unusually stirring. The excitement over Elizabeth and Philip augurs for the greatest spontaneous welcome since Gen. Douglas MacArthur's.

After visitors arrive on the scene, however, their own personalities gauge much of the response. French President Vincent Auriol and his vivacious wife were unusually charming visitors last spring.

Auriol exclaimed rapturously over every feature of his welcome, including the fact that the "Vive Le President Auriol" posters pictured him in the very tie he wore that particular day!

Iran's Shah Wowed The Town

● OTHER VISITORS—Hardly having caught its breath after Auriol, Washington greeted in quick succession Chile's samba-dancing international supersalesman, President Gonzalez Videla, and Ecuador's United States born football-playing and bull-fighting President Galo Plaza Lasso.

Other visitors this year included Crown Prince Olaf and Princess Martha of Norway, who made a quiet, dignified impression; Belgium's Premier Joseph Pholien and his wife, and the Liaquat Ali Kahn, prime minister of Pakistan.

Last year's star, of course, was the Shah of Iran, who as an eligible bachelor wowed the younger social set, although the diplomatic heavy artillery boomed for President Eurico Gaspar Dutra of Brazil and touchy Prime Minister Nehru of India.

The capital's nervous and volatile population never seems to tire of hailing indiscriminately each newcomer, and only Britain's Field Marshal Bernard L. Montgomery has in recent years received a welcome that might be described as cool.

All-in-all, it makes for a never-ending pageant, a kind of international magic carpet that Washington never lets get threadbare.

STALIN'S DESTINY

THE National Geographic Society has been digging up interesting facts concerning dictators, old and new, and has learned that the breed hasn't changed since the beginning of history.

The dictator business goes back at least 5,000 years, to Egypt's old kingdom, where great monuments were erected as tombs for passing rulers. The Sphinx of Egypt still stands as a symbol of the birth of dictatorship, 3,000 years before the coming of Christ.

Present-day dictators seem to be following the rules laid down by tyrants of old. About 2,000 B. C. Amenemhet I came on the scene, and he seems to have been a sort of early-day Stalin so far as his philosophy of government was concerned.

Old Amenemhet was a tough cookie, who told his son who was to succeed him:

"That thou mayest be king of the earth harden thyself against all subordinates. The people give heed to him who terrorizes them. Approach them not alone. Fill not thy heart with a brother. Know not a friend."

There's the pattern for dictatorship, and it hasn't changed throughout the ages. Old Amenemhet and Stalin are of the same breed, although 4,000 years have separated their lives. Conqueror has followed conqueror throughout history, all to pass into oblivion, giving nothing to the world.

Stalin's destiny is forecast throughout the pages of history.

INFLATION AND SAVINGS

LOSS of purchasing power through inflation is serious to the average citizen, but that is not the only penalty to be paid as a result of cheapening of the currency. Money held in savings accounts, bonds, life insurance and other investments has lost nearly half its value in the last 10 years.

Because such investments are almost invariably insurance against old age their depletion can be tragic for those who formerly felt secure because of them.

The Federal Reserve Board has been looking into the nature of such investments to discover if there has been a lessening in the purchases of securities of known dollar value in favor of those of a speculative character. It was learned, however, that American citizens are still buying those securities which have a fixed dollar value, and are not interested to a noticeable degree in those which offer a possible speculative profit, or which would rise or fall in value with the fluctuation of the currency.

Scientists have been meeting in London to establish a route to the moon. Presumably all the turns will be marked, and there will be a hamburger oases along the way in case the children get hungry.

These Days

Recently, we motored toward Maine. First we went to a little place called Sturbridge where a New England village of the Eighteenth Century has been reconstructed within its proper setting. There we lunched and the trip had an unexpectedly good start.

Then we motored to Concord, to the city of Emerson and Hawthorne and the irrepressible Alcotts. My little girl was principally interested in "Little Women" and my wife in the chaste houses of New England.

Hawthorne pervades this area. Concord, Salem, Stockbridge—he seems to have left his mark wherever he lived; and to see a chair on which Emerson sat and Hawthorne wrote is to get at the very roots of things American.

We were on our way to York Harbor, Maine, where I was to do a chore of speech-making for my friend, Marion Martin. Unfortunately, I missed Portsmouth on this trip. No city has more charming early American houses than Portsmouth, except Salem, and Charleston, S. C. To Portsmouth's houses, even a tourist must devote a week; that is, if the tourist finds beautiful homes interesting and exciting and if his imagination can make him feel the lives of our progenitors.

For a house bespeaks personality. That is never true of a city apartment or of those banged together affairs with all modern conveniences but no lived-in atmosphere. Show me what kind of homes men build for their families, and I can almost sense their ideals of life. That, in a simpler and even truer way, my little girl said about Louisa May Alcott's home in Concord, and about the house of the seven gables in Salem where Hawthorne's cousin, Susan Ingersoll, lived.

We bedded down in Salem at the Hawthorne hotel, which the local citizens built just off the square. But we could not remain indoors with so much beauty about us. So we trudged through the night, looking at the outsides of these unbelievably beautiful houses, some of which we would visit the next day.

The builders of these homes, many dead a century or so, were known to me with such intimacy as comes from China coast fables. For many of them were the masters and supercargoes of the clipper ships which sailed from Salem to Asia when this nation was young, bringing back with them silks and teas and spices to enrich the lives of our people.

Their homes speak eloquently of their great love for country and family. Only such as dreamed of home on the vast and tumultuous seas, as they rounded the cape or sailed across the expansive Pacific, could put such affection into the place to which, wind and weather being willing, they would one day return. The doors of Chestnut street are a holiday of affection for home. And in Salem all the doors of the old houses point to the sea, as Moslems pray facing toward Mecca. In the Essex Institute, it is possible to spend hours, perhaps years, tracing out the stories of these courageous traders.

SYNOPSIS

Jim Eliot with a brilliant war record and a broken marriage behind him, settles in a small southern city of his native USA. Here he begins to succeed as a realtor. Here he meets handsome, popular, career-girl Laura Blayde, a divorcee. Jim accompanies Laura to a dinner party at the home of her in-laws, Harrison and Eden Blayde, their teen-age daughter Anne, and young son Deke. These Blaydes live far beyond their means and are headed for financial disaster.

CHAPTER THREE

THE IGLEHARTS arrived first, as usual, Ramsay looking polished and alert as always, Joan lively and slightly disheveled. She greeted Harrison shrilly, gave a hoot of laughter as she freed herself from the torn lining of a velvet evening wrap.

"No, I won't go up," she said. "Throw the thing down anywhere. My beauty doesn't depend on first aid—wonderful to be ugly, you don't have to bother."

Harrison hung the limp velvet affair in the hall closet. "Toss over your hat, Ramsay. Sit down, Eden will be here in a minute."

"Mac Fowler was right behind us," Ramsay said.

Joan Iglehart flung herself onto the deepest couch and asked "How come Mac is stepping out so gaily lately? Has Martha lost her grip on the leash?"

Ramsay made a prim, reproving mouth. "Martha," he remarked, "happens to be a broad-minded and reasonable woman. She knows that nothing is so depressing to a man as an invalid wife and she has the good sense to make Mac go out without her."

"That's really new—to think Martha as broad-minded," cooed Joan dryly. "Anyway she must have something—all the men rush to defend her."

"I didn't know Martha needed defense," Harrison said. "She's not having any fun. Her eyesight's failing now, Mac told me, and they've had to increase the insulin shots."

Joan shuddered, pouted. "The ghastly things that can happen to people!"

The judge arrived wearing no hat. He was taller than any of them and immediately the most relaxed and comfortable person in the room. He said, "Pretty dress, Eden. Suits you. Sit down, Ramsay. I'm not holding court."

Suddenly Harrison remembered his traffic-violation ticket. He had a desire to talk to Mac Fowler about the black out tonight but he knew what Mac would say, what any of them would say. "Harrison, I'd see Doctor Cannon if I were you. Wise to check up now and then."

A small cold fear grew and tightened under Harrison's breastbone. He put it down sternly. He couldn't be sick—there wasn't time.

Arriving, Laura said, "Hi, folks! This is Jim Eliot."

Eden shook hands with this tall stranger, aware of her daughter Anne at the back of the hall, aware with swift maternal intuition of Anne's startled, admiring eyes.

Anne said, "Hello, Aunt Laura. What a perfectly adorable, goofy hat!"

"Isn't it silly and lovely?" Laura jerked off the hat, perched it on Anne's blonde head, hugging the girl to her. "This is Anne, Jim," Laura said. "Isn't she precious? Eden, you look wonderful, but then you always do. All of you must like Jim now. He's really special and he's staying in town."

"Don't mind Laura—she was weaned on firecrackers and seltzer water." Harrison steered the tall man into the living room. "These are the Igleharts—Ramsay and Joanie."

Joan shrieked, "Don't bring that creature near me! I hate him. He told me this morning he couldn't sell my little farm."

"I merely said," countered Eliot coolly, "that some properties were difficult to move."

Laura and Anne were carrying on a rapid conversation in low tones, and Eden Blayde, temporarily static on a chair near the door, found herself watching them uneasily. Anne was fascinated by Laura and Eden was not happy about it. Laura had married John Blayde, Harrison's younger brother, and lived with him for four years till the war took him to Casablanca and Italy, and ultimately, without perceptible ill feeling on either side, out of her life.

John had come home helplessly in love with a big, blonde, placid WAC, and without rancor or unseemly ado Laura had let him go.

"Mother—" Anne lifted her voice—"Aunt Laura thinks she may go up to the lake over the week end. She wants me to go with her."

"We'll see, dear," Eden evaded.

"It will be Anne's last chance for a holiday before she goes back to school," Laura put in. "I think we could have fun."

"Oh, Mother, I want to go!" Anne exclaimed.

With relief Eden heard the chimes. She slipped back into the kitchen, summoning Harrison with a flicked finger.

"Who is this guy Laura brought in?" Harrison asked.

"All I know is that he's in real estate and married and not divorced and that his name is Eliot. Harrie, Laura's your family—I don't want to be small-minded, but I don't want Anne going on trips with Laura. After all, even if there's nothing tangible but raised eyebrows, we can't have that for Anne!"

Harrison drew his brows together. "I think Anne's safe. But she needn't go if you don't want her to."

"But you never back me up—not when it's Laura! Go ahead, Imogene. Then come back and put the salad on the service plates—"

"Yas'm."

Judge Fowler was making a sort of speech when they went back to the living room. "I'd like to see the age limit raised for drivers' licenses. We don't permit an adolescent to control property, make contracts, or act otherwise independently of authority, so why should we turn him loose with tons of steel and power to work destruction?"

Anne wailed, "Oh, no! You mean I'd have to wait till I'm twenty-one to drive the car?"

The judge answered, "For well-behaved young ladies like you, Anne, I'd make an exception. But don't let me catch you playing tag with fenders or driving five on the front seat and seven behind, like the crowd they brought into court yesterday."

Above the murmur of voices at table Eden heard Mac Fowler saying to Harrison, "Only yesterday a fellow asked me why the police didn't do something about crime in this town and let the kids alone?"

Anne's cheeks were hot and pink. "Well, why don't they?" she demanded. "You have to be adult before you can break the law . . ."

Laura squeezed her arm. "You've got a crusader growing up, Harrie. You go to it, Anne, turn the world upside down. Maybe it looks prettier on the bottom—anyway it couldn't look worse."

Across the table Laura was sharing some quiet joke with Bill Davis, a situation that Sue broke up by a blunt announcement.

"I suppose you've heard, Laura, that Johnny's wife is expecting? Does that make you a stepmother or something?"

Judge Fowler looked at Laura's swiftly stricken face with paternal gentleness. "It makes Laura the same bright, free soul she has always been," he remarked. "Perhaps they'll invite Laura to be a godmother."

"Whoops—Laura a godmother!" exploded Joan. "You have to promise to cherish them till death do you part, Laura."

"That's the marriage ceremony," Bill protested. "That's the joker they hang on you. Godmothers have to send the infant silver cups and stuff."

Harrison was seeing the quick glint of pain that showed in Laura's blue eyes. Laura had never got over Johnny, no matter how brave a show she put on. Her recklessness, the follies Eden was always deploring, Harrison knew, were only so many desperate gestures to hide and assuage a hurt.

Laura said a trifle hoarsely, "Johnny's wife is a fine person, the quiet, homebody type, definitely different from me. This baby is a low trick though. I did want one, but Johnny said no."

"Why does anybody want to bring children into a world like this?" demanded Sue Davis, her voice edging into defensiveness." "Cold war, rotten politics, all the schools full of radicals and no respect for anything any more."

"The kids," remarked Bill, "are acquired to pay off this whopping debt. Look at Anne here. She's already mortgaged to her eyebrows and the red ink growing deeper every day."

Judge Fowler interposed quietly, "You forget, Bill, that our national income is also increasing tremendously along with the population. Automatically the matter of debt will solve itself."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The next several weeks may be dull, but November promises to be interesting. . .income taxes, gasoline taxes, cigaret taxes and many other taxes go up on the first and later in the month we will give thanks for all our blessings.

But the tax proposed on savings banks and building and loan associations is not to be construed as a tax on thrift; you can't tax something which has gone the way of the horse cars.

Savings accounts now paying a robust one and one-half or two percent should drop to about half of one percent when the new tax comes in. This should restore the popularity of the mattress as a receiving vault for savings, if any.

Anyway, this will give us our 18th straight glorious year of increased government spending and increasing taxes. Is there anyone who would like to try for 36?

The British Labor government has tried all the tax paths ahead of us and is netting less and less return on its more and more policies but fortunately they have a rich uncle.

Or at least he looks rich until you examine the red ink side of his books.

Princess Elizabeth's Visit Poses Problem | Can Welcome Be Held Without Big Fanfare?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—It is going to be hard to keep the visit here next month of British Princess Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, within the limited bounds they have requested.

Although planned only as a brief side tour after the full-dress coast-to-coast state tour that the royal couple will pay to Canada, it somehow always is compared here with the fabulous 1939 visit of the King and Queen of England.

Princess Elizabeth

Serving as host to VIPs from abroad has become a habit which the nation's capital adores. A bespangled tour down Pennsylvania avenue toward the White House, flanked by motorcycle cops twenty abreast from curb to curb, now is as much a welcoming badge for Uncle Sam as a New York ticker tape reception.

Washington's visitors are chiefly political, and their calls either are "informal" or state occasions. Technically, it decides the way the welcome mat is rolled out, but actually the magnitude of the personality determines the hullabaloo.

Elizabeth's visit was to be so casual, officially speaking, that President Truman sent her little more than a notice that she would be welcome, which according to diplomatic etiquette, she may never accept officially, lest that be too elaborate.

The presidential plane, Independence, probably will fetch the royal couple to Washington, where they will be Blair House guests for several days beginning Oct. 2.

● TRUMAN DINNER—A dinner for only about 20 guests will be given by the Trumans, followed by a return dinner at the Canadian embassy. Then there will be a garden party at the British embassy, which sounds prim, but could assume the proportions of a circus like that 1939 affair for the royal family.

The next scheduled full-dress state visit will be that of Holland's Queen Juliana and her consort, Prince Bernhard, early in 1952 when the renovated White House with its new suite for national guests will be ready.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President

Nearly every edition of every daily and weekly newspaper in the nation has several news dispatches on its front page reporting on activities or issues that involve the economic welfare of every citzen.

Yet economics is a subject on which few people are well informd.

In other words, a great deal is happening and a great many things are being proposed in our nation today, affecting your welfare and mine, on which only a comparativly few people feel really qualified to pass judgement.

This is a dangerous situation. It could permit drastic fundamental changes to be made in the American way of life and severe injury to our living standard. An awareness of this situation has led me to continually expand the Harding College National Education Program to get widest distribution of economic education materials.

In the past 10 years general knowledge on what makes the American system tick has been vastly improved but ignorance of the simple basic facts of economics still extends to millions of Americans and constitutes a critical situation.

* * *

THE ALFRED SLOAN Foundation last year commissioned the Brookings Institution of Washington to make a study of what's being done in our schools and elsewhere to improve the population's understanding of economics. After 10 months work, Dr. H. G. Moulton, Brookings president, and C. W. McKee, Chairman of the Department of Economics of Westminister College, New Wilmington, Pa., have just recently made their report to the Sloan Foundation. It begins by defining "economic education" as: "helping people to gain understanding of the forces and factors that produce higher standards of living."

Here are some major Brookings findings of vital interest to every American:

1. "Only a very small percentage of our high school students get any real grasp of the economic factors and forces that are responsible for higher standards of living. Scarcely 10 percent take the equivalent of a semester course in economics."

2. "Five out of the six most widely used high school textbooks devote some space to a description of the principal features of the capitalistic, socialistic and communistic systems. None of them, however, attempt a real appraisal of the merits of the several types of economic systems."

3. The most widely used single textbook was written by an author "who is clearly sympathetic with the regulatory trends of recent times in the U. S.—though he points out that too much government control may stifle business initiative."

* * *

4. "THE PROFESSIONAL preparation of the economics teachers seems incredibly low. Indeed, a great majority of the schoolmen interviewed said that it was virtually impossible to get a person well trained in economics."

5. "Only one out of every four college students completes one or more economics courses."

6. "None of the textbooks most widely used in American colleges gives a strong exposition of the virtues of free private enterprise. Instead, most of them emphasize the shortcomings of private enterprise without stressing the good points. Some, while admitting the significant contributions of private enterprise in the past, question whether it can bring equally fruitful results in the future."

7. "It is clear that the organized educational institutions have not adequately met the educational requirements for intelligent citizenship."

8. "To fill the vacuum left by our schools and colleges (in the field of economic education; a growing number of private organizations have been experimenting with ways of doing the job themselves."

A number of these experiments have been ill-conceived and ineffective. Some have been outstanding.

These Brookings Institution findings present two pressing challenges to American education in this crisis: (1) To create textbooks and develop teaching staffs which will give our youth an intelligent appreciation of the American system and a love of country.

(2) To inform the public of the incomparable advantages of the American system and what makes it tick. These are responsibilities which are inherent, I believe, in any American educational institution.

If well done they wll block the progress of the fifth column in America.

Wife Given Her Wish

OMAHA, Sept. 13—Mrs. Evelyn Hooker of Omaha had her wish—to be close to her husband—today, but not like she intended.

Jailers said Mrs. Hooker went to the Douglas County courthouse last night and insisted that she be allowed to visit her husband. When told that visiting day is Friday, she allegedly kicked over spittoons, upset benches, swung her pocketbook at a deputy sheriff and told the matron: "If I had a gun I'd shoot you all."

She was locked up for disturbing the peace.

UN Plans Aid For Children

FLUSHING MEADOW, Sept. 13—The UN International Children's Emergency Fund has voted nearly $1 million for Winter relief for children in Korea, West Germany, Greece and Yugoslavia.

The fund said the largest apportionment—$453,000 — is for clothing materials for Korean children. The remainder, it said, will be spent on clothing materials and fish liver oil for needy children in West Germany, Greece and Yugoslavia.

The acid test of Germany's willingness to participate in the defense of Western Europe is being formulated in Washington, but the final answer, of course, can come only from the Reich itself.

The full focus of Western Germany's attention is upon Washington, where Secretary of State Dean Acheson has been meeting with British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France.

Their agenda is a wide and imposing one, especially in view of the fact that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization powers are meeting in Ottawa this weekend to canvass all the manifold problems of protecting the European continent from further Soviet expansion and aggression.

But at the moment, Germany has top priority, and the decisions to be reached will be of enormous importance to the future.

* * *

SECRETARY Acheson, following his success in dealing with Soviet obstructionism in the Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco, has envisaged a plan for granting Germany renewed national sovereignty with limitations that would prevent her from ever again becoming an aggressor nation.

There are definite signs that Morrison and Schuman will go along with the plan—the Western Allies have now been fused into an entity where agreement on international affairs, particular as regards Europe, is virtually a foregone conclusion.

The West German government headed by President Theodor Heuss and Chancellor Dr. Konrad Adenauer are heartily in accord with the Allied plans.

They have given numerous pledges of full cooperation; they have modified certain conditions they originally sought to impose with regard to the service of German soldiers in a European army.

But the opinion and reaction of the German rank and file remain the unknown quantity.

Small units of able-bodied young Germans armed and equipped by the Allies for local policing have shown the traditional Teutonic enthusiasm for uniforms, drill and discipline.

* * *

BUT EXCEPT for the presence of United States observers and advisers, they are a strictly "national" unit—German forces to the core and not integrated into any international armed system.

The big question is whether in any time of crisis the German soldier, as an average man and as an individual, would accept foreign command.

There are many Germans stll living in bombed out houses who are thoroughly fed up with war and anything connected with it. But the new Nazi movements of recent times are eloquent proof that the aggressive military spirit of Germany is not dead by any means.

The task of the Allies clearly is to bring about a merger between these two schools of thought—to make of Germany a contributory factor in the peace of the world and at the same time harness her manpower and production to defense.

Canton Plans Bus Benches

CANTON, Sept. 13 — Foot-weary bus riders in Canton will soon be able to take it easy while waiting for that overdue bus.

City council is planning to take a load off the rider's feet by permitting the installation of 10 benches at 10 selected stops for the month of October on a trial basis.

The benches will have advertising on them and will be licensed at two dollars a bench.

UNUSUAL CLUB FORMED

Heart Disease Victims Laughing Off Troubles

NANTUCKET, Mass., Sept. 13 —A retired dentist has formed a unique club for heart disease victims on the theory that "misery loves company, if the company can laugh at the misery."

Dr. Oliver D. Wescott, a football and baseball star at Tufts college in 1917, named his new organization, the Cardiac Club.

The Doc, who is as breezy as the island of Nantucket itself, lists only two requirements for membership. One must have spent some time in an oxygen tent; and must have a sense of humor.

The official membership insignia is a "bleeding blood" shell, a native of Florida. It is brown in color and shaped like a heart. The doctor affixes a diamond chip on each to represent the "last ray of hope."

* * *

THERE ARE NO dues—not yet, anyway. There may be an initiation fee if the club keeps on growing at its present rate.

One charter member has two diamonds. The club decided he needed it after he consumed his 71st tank of oxygen.

The club was more or less a closed affair during its first two months. Then the news reached the mainland. It was apparent from the mail that a goodly number of people would like the chance to laugh off their troubles.

Mrs. Dorothy Wescott, the doctor's wife, who "inherited" the job of answering the mail, said today:

"Two heart specialists wrote letters which arrived in the first batch of letters. Both approved the idea.

"A Mrs. C. J. Leary, 71, of Springfield, Mass., who has been in bed for five years, wanted to know if we would consider setting up a correspondence club, for those in her condition.

"A Congregational minister said he was for spreading the club to the mainland. And so did an agent for the Boston and Maine railroad, who said he wanted the pin so he could get out of doing overtime work.

* * *

"A CATHOLIC priest on the island, Father Fitzgerald, belongs. He wears his pin when he celebrates mass."

Dr. Wescott is considering an initiation fee to be given to the American Heart Fund.

The informal meetings of the dozen or so island members usually includes a good deal of kidding. Only entertainment is watching softball games. The members are driven to the games by Dr. Wescott, who is the only one who operates an automobile.

What are the Dollar Signs Saying?

MAYBE you've noticed that dollars don't seem to talk as loud as they used to in a lot of places.

But you ought to hear what they say about this Buick.

They say – here are such things as an oil filter, air cleaner, vacuum booster, built-in summer ventilation – not as "extras" but yours at no extra charge.

They say that "smart buy's Buick" –by a wide measure.

But a smart buyer will also let this dashing darling speak for itself.

He'll take the wheel and feel how it snugs to the road on turns—holds its course on the highway with big-car assurance.

Better Write A Will Or Cousin Myrtle May Grab

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — And then there was the old gent who said if he couldn't take it with him, he wouldn't go.

However, the general run of people not only go eventually and leave it behind, but even fail to make a will telling what to do with it in the sweet bye-and-bye.

The end result is that only one person out of a hundred in these United States makes a will.

Robert J. Schwartz, a young New York attorney who has just written a short book, "Write Your Own Will!", declares:

"People just don't like to write a will. It took me a long time to figure out that people are superstitious about it, and the men just as bad as the women. A lot of otherwise sensible pepole seem to feel that signing a will is tantamount to signing a death warrant."

* * *

SO PEOPLE KEEP putting it of and procrastinating, and pretty soon they are called to their just reward. And what happens? What happens is that Cousin Myrtle, the one with the mean dispositiion and the squint —the cousin who is poison to one and all—somehow manages to get her hooks on the whole estate, in the absence of a will.

"So I advise everyone to make a will, even if he hasn't a red cent to leave at the moment he makes it," says Schwartz.

This is not as cockeyed as it seems, the lawyer said delicately. To put it bluntly, some persons are worth more financially dead than alive. Suppose a man is knocked down and killed by an automobile.

Even if the victim was penniless at the moment of death, the auto insurance company may feel the victim's heirs merit a payment of $20,000.

But if the victim has failed to make a will, Cousin Myrtle may be in there grabbing the cash when the deceased would a sight rather it went to old Mrs. Gabby across the way who always had a kind word and a hot cup of tea for him anytime of day.

That's the sort of contretemps an individual runs into when he refuses to face up to the fact that he is mortal and not too long for this world. It's enough to make his ectoplasm shudder.

* * *

SCHWARTZ FOUND out a lot about wills and the widespread superstition surrounding them during World War II.

"I was captain of a subchaser," he says, "and during the war, I wrote hundreds of wills for kids in the Navy. They'd find out I was a lawyer, and they'd circle round and talk of this and that and then ask me to help them write a will.

"It was an interesting experience. And I found out about the American man's devotion to his mother. If a kid wasn't married, he invariably willed everything he had to his mother. He loved his father and his brothers and his sisters. But it was 'Ma' whom he wanted to have his worldly goods."

One of the most common fallacies in circulation is the widespread conviction that a man's widow automatically inherits everything he owns, whether he makes a will or no. This emphatically is not true.

Schwartz points out, for example, if a resident of New York dies intestate, his widow only receives one-third of the estate if there are no children, and one-half of the estate if there are children. All his kith and kin, mayhap Cousin Myrtle, whom he abhored, may get a whack at the residue.

"My advice to anyone about to make a will is to leave out any peculiarities and for heaven sakes, not to use it as a sounding board for grudges against Cousin Myrtle or anyone else.

"Also, under no circumstances make an inheritance conditional on the recipient doing something that will humiliate him or make him ridiculous," like rolling a peanut around the block with his nose or keeping a chromo of Warren Gamaliel Harding in his living room.

And if you have a yen to cut off Cousin Myrtle without a farthing, there are polite ways to do it and make it stick.

Gasoline Burns Prove Fatal

CANTON, Sept. 13—A 36-year-old Canton metalworker died yesterday of gasoline burns suffered while he was burning metal at the National Iron and Metal Co.

The victim, James Bunch, died in Aultman hospital from the burns received Sept. 5.

Air Travel Priorities Are Hinted

Civilian Service Program Studied

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—A return to priorities for airplane seats in the event of war was forecast today by government and civil aviation leaders.

The National Security Resources Board air transport mobilization survey, headed by Under-Secretary of Commerce Delos Rentzel, offered to Defense Mobilizer Wilson a plan to mobilize air transport with the least possible inconvenience to civilian passenger service.

The plan, however, would utilize a program similar to the priority system for passenger space in World War II, and would halt passenger service to some points with a low volume of traffic.

The NSRB report noted that "the air carrier industry under full mobilization can meet domestic and international traffic needs and in addition provide a reserve fleet of four-engine aircraft capable of meeting known military requirements and operating anywhere in the world under contract to the military."

* * *

BUT, THE report said, "the ability of the industry and Civil Aeronautics Administration to meet civil and military traffic requirements is dependent on their not being denuded of critical skills by reserve callups and the draft."

Since 41 percent of the pilots and 33 percent of other flight personnel are in the military reserves any callup action would necessarily reduce air service.

Therefore, the board recommended that "immediate action must be taken with regard to training programs, deferment policies and increased utilization of present personnel."

The government should bear the cost for such training beyond the amounts the industry would normally spend, the NSRB panel said.

The survey group also recommended that the military should not duplicate civilian air training activities, but instead should utilize these centers more than it is at present.

The Carlsbad caverns in New Mexico are estimated to be about 200 million years old.

Better Write A Will Or Cousin Myrtle May Grab

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — And then there was the old gent who said if he couldn't take it with him, he wouldn't go.

However, the general run of people not only go eventually and leave it behind, but even fail to make a will telling what to do with it in the sweet bye-and-bye.

The end result is that only one person out of a hundred in these United States makes a will.

Robert J. Schwartz, a young New York attorney who has just written a short book, "Write Your Own Will!", declares:

"People just don't like to write a will. It took me a long time to figure out that people are superstitious about it, and the men just as bad as the women. A lot of otherwise sensible p e p o l e seem to feel that signing a will is tantamount to signing a death warrant."

* * *

SO PEOPLE KEEP putting it of and procrastinating, a n d pretty soon they are called to their just reward. And what happens? What happens is that Cousin Myrtle, the one with the mean dispositiion and the squint —the cousin who is poison to one and all—somehow manages to get her hooks on the whole estate, in the absence of a will.

"So I advise everyone to make a will, even if he hasn't a red cent to leave at the moment he makes it," says Schwartz.

This is not as cockeyed as it seems, the lawyer said delicately. To put it bluntly, some persons are worth more financially dead than alive. Suppose a man is knocked down and killed by an automobile.

Even if the victim was penniless at the moment of death, the auto insurance company may feel the victim's heirs merit a payment of $20,000.

But if the victim has failed to make a will, Cousin Myrtle may be in there grabbing the cash when the deceased would a sight rather it went to old Mrs. Gabby across the way who always had a kind word and a hot cup of tea for him anytime of day.

That's the sort of contretemps an individual runs into when he refuses to face up to the fact that he is mortal and not too long for this world. It's enough to make his ectoplasm shudder.

* * *

SCHWARTZ FOUND out a lot about wills and the widespread superstition surrounding them during World War II.

"I was captain of a subchaser," he says, "and during the war, I wrote hundreds of wills for kids in the Navy. They'd find out I was a lawyer, and they'd circle round and talk of this and that and then ask me to help them write a will.

"It was an interesting experience. And I found out about the American man's devotion to his mother. If a kid wasn't married, he invariably willed everything he had to his mother. He loved his father and his brothers and his sisters. But it was 'Ma' whom he wanted to have his worldly goods."

One of the most common fallacies in circulation is the widespread conviction that a man's widow automatically inherits everything he owns, whether he makes a will or no. This emphatically is not true.

Schwartz points out, for example, if a resident of New York dies intestate, his widow only receives one-third of the estate if there are no children, and one-half of the estate if there are children. All his kith and kin, mayhap Cousin Myrtle, whom he abhored, may get a whack at the residue.

"My advice to anyone about to make a will is to leave out any peculiarities and for heaven sakes, not to use it as a sounding board for grudges against Cousin Myrtle or anyone else.

"Also, under no circumstances make an inheritance conditional on the recipient d o i n g something that will humiliate him or make him ridiculous," like rolling a peanut around the block with his nose or keeping a chromo of Warren Gamaliel Harding in his living room.

And if you have a yen to cut off Cousin Myrtle without a farthing, there are polite ways to do it and make it stick.

Air Travel Priorities Are Hinted

Civilian Service Program Studied

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—A return to priorities for airplane seats in the event of war was forecast today by government and civil aviation leaders.

The National Security Resources Board air transport mobilization survey, headed by Under-Secretary of Commerce Delos Rentzel, offered to Defense Mobilizer Wilson a plan to mobilize air transport with the least possible inconvenience to civilian passenger service.

The plan, however, would utilize a program similar to the priority system for passenger space in World War II, and would halt passenger service to some points with a low volume of traffic.

The NSRB report noted that "the air carrier industry under full mobilization can meet domestic and international traffic needs and in addition provide a reserve fleet of four-engine aircraft capable of meeting known military requirements and operating anywhere in the world under contract to the military."

* * *

BUT, THE report said, "the ability of the industry and Civil Aeronautics Administration to meet civil and military traffic requirements is dependent on their not being denuded of critical skills by reserve callups and the draft."

Since 41 percent of the pilots and 33 percent of other flight personnel are in the military reserves any callup action would necessarily reduce air service.

Therefore, the board recommended that "immediate action must be taken with regard to training programs, deferment policies and increased utilization of present personnel."

The government should bear the cost for such training beyond the amounts the industry would normally spend, the NSRB panel said.

The survey group also recommended that the military should not duplicate civilian air training activities, but instead should utilize these centers more than it is at present.

The Carlsbad caverns in New Mexico are estimated to be about 200 million years old.

LOVETT KNOWS PROBLEMS

New Defense Secretary Has Diplomatic Bearing

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — A tall, precise man with the unmistakable air of the State Department about him became U.S defense secretary-designate yesterday: He indicated that he is ready to carry through all the projects started by General George C. Marshall.

The President's appointee, Deputy Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett, sent word following Marshall's resignation that he would see reporters later and meanwhile would carry on in his job.

Lovett already has his suite of offices next to Marshall's, above the Pentagon's magnificent river entrance, and is intimately familiar with all the military and defense problems that have risen during Marshall's year in office.

Although he has had both military and diplomatic experience, Lovett's manner is that of the diplomat, and he refers to himself as a banker. He was assistant secretary of war for air during World War II, and served as Marshall's undersecretary of state.

* * *

LOVETT WAS born in Huntsville, Tex., Sept. 14, 1895, the son of a judge, and attended both Yale and Harvard universities. He got his first degree at Yale in 1918, and studied in the Harvard law and business schools for the next three years.

His education was interrupted during World War I when he learned to fly at Port Washington, Long Island, and went to France as a naval aviator. He won his French wings flying land planes, and for a time was assigned to the British naval air service on submarine patrol.

He began his business career as a clerk in the National Bank of Commerce in New York in 1921, and eventually became a partner in Brown Brothers, Harriman and Co., a banking and investment firm.

During his rise, he became a director in a number of railroad and insurance companies and was a trustee for the Metropolitan Museum of Art and a number of other philanthropic and education institutions in New York.

Lovett resigned all his business connections and obtained leave of absence from the trusteeship when he became assistant secretary of war for air in 1940.

* * *

HE DEVOTED himself to building up the striking power of the Army air forces.

He remained in the air job until December, 1945, when he again became a partner in Brown Brothers, Harriman and Co.

He returned to the government as undersecretary of state in 1947 and again resigned his banking connections. He resigned a third time to become deputy defense secretary last Nov. 29.

Slav Protest Slaps Albania

FLUSHING MEADOW, Sept. 13—Yugoslavia charged before the United Nations yesterday that Albanian soldiers crossed the Yugoslav border Sept. 2 and attacked a Yugoslav patrol, killing one man.

The protest, copy of an identical note sent to the Communist Tirana regime, termed the attack an "aggressive act" and demanded punishment of the Albanian soldiirs, compensation for the dead Yugoslav soldier and cessation of "the systematic aggressive activities of the Albanian armed forces. . .which endanger peace in this part of the world."

House-To-House Search Pondered

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13—Cleveland police may conduct a house-to-house search of the West 117th-Linnett Avenue area for possible clews to the disappearance of 10-year-old Beverly Potts.

Deputy Inspector James E. McArthur, who admitted the police have not turned up any good leads, said his men may possibly search homes within a mile of the Potts residence at 11304 Linnett Avenue.

"We have exhausted every other angle and I don't see what else there is to do," he explained.

Soybean Growers Warned Diseases Cripple Crops

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — An Agriculture Department scientist has warned soybean growers that their crop can be hit by at least 500 known diseases—some of which could become epidemic.

Dr. M. G. Weiss, of the department's research staff, told the American Soybean Association that such diseases as target and leaf eye spot which were severe in the south last season pose a constant threat to the crop.

Weiss pointed out that soybeans have not generally been noted for susceptibility to disease—but that doesn't mean a disease can't strike.

He said today soybean breeders are busy trying to track down and identify soybean diseases and then breed resistance into the plant, concentrating on types that are otherwise suitable for farm use.

Weiss said it is now probable that science can lick most diseases by this breeding process. It is working particularly well in leaf spot, bacterial postule, bacterial blight and wildfire diseases.

In addition to their disease resistance work the scientists are also trying to develop at least one profitable soybean type for every area in the nation.

Conservative estimates from the department indicate that specially adapted varieties in the north central states have increased yields by an average of 20 percent. Increases in the south are even greater.

Game fishing in the Great Smoky mountains is permitted from mid-May through August.

LOST 34 LBS.
Feels Younger

"Not only have I lost weight since taking Rennel, but I feel so much better," writes Mrs. Dora Johnson, 536 Armstrong St., Columbus, Ohio. "I have lost 34 lbs., have renewed pep and feel years younger. I was troubled with arthritis, but now this is very much improved. Also I do not suffer from headaches as I did before."

It's amazing how quickly you can lose unsightly fat at home. Obtain liquid Rennel at your druggist, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Rennel.

August Prices Found Upward

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — The Labor Department has announced that retail food prices rose seven-tenths of one percent during August to 227.2 percent of the 1935-39 average.

The price trend reversed a downturn in the latter part of July, but did not reach the all-time high of 227.7 percent of the 1935-39 average recorded on July 15.

Prices on Aug. 27 were approximately 12 percent above the level reported just before the outbreak of the Korean war.

4 Men Killed In Jersey Fire

PATERSON, N.J., Sept. 13—Four men were burned to death in a flash fire which destroyed a two-story wood tenement building here yesterday.

Police said that the victims were found in a second-story room where they had been sleeping when the fire broke out, apparently in the first-floor kitchen.

Kremlin Orders Aid For Ko-Reds

BERLIN, Sept. 13—The Northwest German Radio (NWDR) said today that Russia has ordered its satellites to send immediate contributions of war materials to North Korea.

The West Berlin radio station said that each of the satellites has been assigned a quota to be filled each month including machine parts, autos, weapons, uniforms and food.

Moonshine Meat Butchers Bring OPS Warning

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13 — A warning went out to Ohio meat buyers today about "moonshine slaughterers" who kill cattle at night in streams and truck it away under "filthy conditions" to eventually reach household tables.

The warning was sounded by an official of the Office of Price Stabilization in Cincinnati who said black market meat operations in Southern Ohio are bringing out "moonshine slaughterers" reminiscent of World War II.

William J. Dammarell, OPS enforcement officer for 21 counties, said the black marketeers slaughter in streams so that the evidence will be washed away. The uninspected meat, he said, is then shipped under "filthy conditions" to the back doors of operators who sell it.

London Papers Laud Marshall

LONDON, Sept. 13 — London newspapers today acclaimed the service of General George C. Marshall who resigned yesterday as U.S. secretary of defense.

The Liberal News-Chronicle said:

"The whole free world will regret General Marshall's decision."

The Conservative Daily Graphic praised the "vision and vigor" of the one-time Army chief of staff who played a major role in outlining the strategy which brought global victory in World War II.

The President's appointee, Depnty Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett, sent word following Marshall's resignation that he would see reporters later and meanwhile would carry on in his job.

Lovett already has his suite of offices next to Marshall's, above the Pentagon's magnificent river entrance, and is intimately familiar with all the military and defense problems that have risen during Marshall's year in office.

Although he has had both military and diplomatic experience, Lovett's manner is that of the diplomat, and he refers to himself as a banker. He was assistant secretary of war for air during World War II, and served as Marshall's undersecretary of state.

* * *

LOVETT WAS born in Huntsville, Tex., Sept. 14, 1895, the son of a judge, and attended both Yale and Harvard universities. He got his first degree at Yale in 1918, and studied in the Harvard law and business schools for the next three years.

His education was interrupted during World War I when he learned to fly at Port Washington, Long Island, and went to France as a naval aviator. He won his French wings flying land planes, and for a time was assigned to the British naval air service on submarine patrol.

He began his business career as a clerk in the National Bank of Commerce in New York in 1921, and eventually became a partner in Brown Brothers, Harriman and Co., a banking and investment firm.

During his rise, he became a director in a number of railroad and insurance companies and was a trustee for the Metropolitan Museum of Art and a number of other philanthropic and education institutions in New York.

Lovett resigned all his business connections and obtained leave of absence from the trusteeship when he became assistant secretary of war for air in 1940.

* * *

HE DEVOTED himself to building up the striking power of the Army air forces.

He remained in the air job until December, 1945, when he again became a partner in Brown Brothers, Harriman and Co.

He returned to the government as undersecretary of state in 1947 and again resigned his banking connections. He resigned a third time to become deputy defense secretary last Nov. 29.

Slav Protest Slaps Albania

FLUSHING MEADOW, Sept. 13—Yugoslavia charged before the United Nations yesterday that Albanian soldiers crossed the Yugoslav border Sept. 2 and attacked a Yugoslav patrol, killing one man.

The protest, copy of an identical note sent to the Communist Tirana regime, termed the attack an "aggressive act" and demanded punishment of the Albanian soldiirs, compensation for the dead Yugoslav soldier and cessation of "the systematic aggressive activities of the Albanian armed forces. . .which endanger peace in this part of the world."

House-To-House Search Pondered

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13—Cleveland police may conduct a house-to-house search of the West 117th-Linnett Avenue area for possible clews to the disappearance of 10-year-old Beverly Potts.

Deputy Inspector James E. McArthur, who admitted the police have not turned up any good leads, said his men may possibly search homes within a mile of the Potts residence at 11304 Linnett Avenue.

"We have exhausted every other angle and I don't see what else there is to do," he explained.

Soybean Growers Warned Diseases Cripple Crops

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — An Agriculture Department scientist has warned soybean growers that their crop can be hit by at least 500 known diseases—some of which could become epidemic.

Dr. M. G. Weiss, of the department's research staff, told the American Soybean Association that such diseases as target and leaf eye spot which were severe in the south last season pose a constant threat to the crop.

Weiss pointed out that soybeans have not generally been noted for susceptibility to disease—but that doesn't mean a disease can't strike.

He said today soybean breeders are busy trying to track down and identify soybean diseases and then breed resistance into the plant, concentrating on types that are otherwise suitable for farm use.

Weiss said it is now probable that science can lick most diseases by this breeding process. It is working particularly well in leaf spot, bacterial postule, bacterial blight and wildfire diseases.

In addition to their disease resistance work the scientists are also trying to develop at least one profitable soybean type for every area in the nation.

Conservative estimates from the department indicate that specially adapted varieties in the north central states have increased yields by an average of 20 percent. Increases in the south are even greater.

Game fishing in the Great Smoky mountains is permitted from mid-May through August.

LOST 34 LBS.
Feels Younger

"Not only have I lost weight since taking Rennel, but I feel so much better," writes Mrs. Dora Johnson, 536 Armstrong St., Columbus, Ohio. "I have lost 34 lbs., have renewed pep and feel years younger. I was troubled with arthritis, but now this is very much improved. Also I do not suffer from headaches as I did before."

It's amazing how quickly you can lose unsightly fat at home. Obtain liquid Rennel at your druggist, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Rennel.

August Prices Found Upward

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — The Labor Department has announced that retail food prices rose seven-tenths of one percent during August to 227.2 percent of the 1935-39 average.

The price trend reversed a downturn in the latter part of July, but did not reach the all-time high of 227.7 percent of the 1935-39 average recorded on July 15.

Prices on Aug. 27 were approximately 12 percent above the level reported just before the outbreak of the Korean war.

4 Men Killed In Jersey Fire

PATERSON, N.J., Sept. 13—Four men were burned to death in a flash fire which destroyed a two-story wood tenement building here yesterday.

Police said that the victims were found in a second-story room where they had been sleeping when the fire broke out, apparently in the first-floor kitchen.

Moonshine Meat Butchers Bring OPS Warning

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13 — A warning went out to Ohio meat buyers today about "moonshine slaughterers" who kill cattle at night in streams and truck it away under "filthy conditions" to eventually reach household tables.

The warning was sounded by an official of the Office of Price Stabilization in Cincinnati who said black market meat operations in Southern Ohio are bringing out "moonshine slaughterers" reminiscent of World War II.

William J. Dammarell, OPS enforcement officer for 21 counties, said the black marketeers slaughter in streams so that the evidence will be washed away. The uninspected meat, he said, is then shipped under "filthy conditions" to the back doors of operators who sell it.

London Papers Laud Marshall

LONDON, Sept. 13 — London newspapers today acclaimed the service of General George C. Marshall who resigned yesterday as U.S. secretary of defense.

The Liberal News-Chronicle said:

"The whole free world will regret General Marshall's decision."

The Conservative Daily Graphic praised the "vision and vigor" of the one-time Army chief of staff who played a major role in outlining the strategy which brought global victory in World War II.

$59,000 Is County Quota For Savings Bond Drive

Judge William Radcliff, Pickaway County Defense Bond chairman, has announced that the county has been given a quota of $59,000 in Series E Bond purchases, for the drive which opened Labor Day and closes Oct. 27.

In announcing the quota, Judge Radcliff noted that this is the first "Defense" Bond drive.

He said that civic, service, fraternal and patriotic organizations throughout the entire state were promoting bond sales more actively during this drive than at any other time since the end of World War II. This promotion, according to the chairman, is the backbone of the drive. He declared:

"We have several organizations working actively here to promote the purchase of extra bonds among their members, but, perhaps even more important, are their efforts to step up the payroll savings plan in local business.

* * *

"WE MUST NOT forsake any one field of potential bond sales for any other and whether bonds are more easily purchased directly through banks or post offices or through automatic payroll saving, we must do everything we can to make our quota."

As usual, the drive will be marked by the display of posters and concentrated newspaper advertising, and radio and television programs. The keynote for the drive is "Defense" and the slogan, "Make Today Your D-Day. Buy Defense Bonds."

The Savings Bond Division, emphasizing "defense," recently disclosed that a Communist group in a "secret" meeting in New York had urged the disruption of the Defense Bond program as the greatest help to Communism.

"We cannot hope to come out of our present crisis if we do not take every possible step to make our country and our local communities economically strong," the chairman said and added:

"I hope every resident of the county will get behind this drive not just for America's sake but for his own personal security and that of his family."

Columbus Man Fibs To Judge, Gets Jail Term

Daniel F. Rodgers of Columbus has had 48 hours to think over the folly of stretching the truth while under oath in a courtroom.

The period of thought was spent in Pickaway County jail under a sentence imposed by Judge William D. Radcliff in common pleas court after Rodgers was found guilty of contempt of court through perjury.

The fraud was practiced in a divorce case last month when Rodgers testified he had not seen his wife, Lola Louise, for 20 years and did not know where she was. A divorce was granted to him on Aug. 18.

A motion seeking to have the divorce decree vacated for reason that fraud was practiced was filed by the wife.

Judge Radcliff ordered the decree vacated. The 48-hour sentence in jail began at 11:55 a. m. Saturday. He was released at 11:55 a. m. Monday.

Bricker Says He Will Seek Senate Reelection

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—Sen. Bricker, (R) Ohio, has announced he will be a candidate for reelection to the Senate next year.

Bricker's statement was made following a luncheon meeting yesterday with Sen. Taft, (R) Ohio, and Ray C. Bliss, Ohio Republican state chairman.

Bricker said: "They asked me if I was going to be a candidate and I said 'yes.' That makes if official."

There had been some earlier rumors that the junior Ohio senator might decide to retire in favor of private business. Both Taft and Bliss applauded Bricker's decision.

Taft said: "I am delighted that John Bricker is willing to run again for the Senate. His ability and sound common sense has been of inestimable value in the Senate to all those who have fought for liberty and economy and sound government.

"He represents the thinking of the people of Ohio, and I have no doubt of his triumphant reelection in 1952."

Bliss said Bricker's announcement paves the way for opening the Ohio Republican campaign.

DEAD OF OLD AGE IN YEAR

15,000 Snails Are Raised By Pair On Unusual Farm

PEARL RIVER, N. Y., Sept. 13—If ever there is a contest to select persons with the most unusual occupations, Ann Greening and Fred Linderman will be strong contenders for the title.

They are honest-to-goodness snail farmers. Their snail "farm" is not a small operation, either. They are responsible for 15,000 of these members of the mollusk family.

Ann and Fred are employed in chemical laboratories here, and their "crops" are used in scientific research. The snails are used as hosts to develop embryos of tropical worms known as schistosomes.

These embryos are injected into mice, where they grow to mature worms, producing a disease known as schistosomiasis. The mice are then treated with a wide variety of drugs in the search for one that will cure the disease.

• • •

THERE ARE THREE types of schistosomiasis and at least one of them is found in Africa, South America and the Orient. There are areas in Africa and Egypt where 80 per cent of the population suffer from the disease.

Estimates of the disease's worldwide incidence run as high as 144 million people, or about one-twelfth of the earth's population.

A local parasitologist, Dr. Redginal Hewitt, is concentrating his research on schistosomiasis. In 1945, local researchers developed a drug which is highly effective against the scourge of the tropics, filariasis or "elephantiasis."

Schistosomiasis is a very unpleasant disease. In humans, the worm eggs often puncture the walls of the veins and arteries, causing leaks in the bloodstream.

Frequently those afflicted with the disease show pronounced swelling of the abdomen, and there is a high death rate in acute cases. Treatment, thus far, has consisted of injections of arsenic and antimony compounds, but these drugs, while effective in some instances, are highly toxic.

The problems connected with caring for snails are many and varied, report Ann and Fred. Harmful algae often grow in their aquariums and kill them.

• • •

AN EVEN temperature must be maintained, their aquariums kept clean and free from dust, and overcrowding must be avoided.

Usually 50 snails are kept in each aquarium. Feeding them is no problem. Small pieces of lettuce are dropped into their watery quarters three times a week, and they subsist entirely on that. Snails are bisexual and usually hang their eggs on the sides of the tanks. Under proper heat, the eggs hatch in about 12 days. As many as 50 baby snails will result from one batch of eggs.

Strange as it may seem, scientists say, snails often die of old age in eight months to a year.

Dry Weather Shows Effect On Ohio Crops

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13—Almost a month and a half of dry weather showed results today in reducted estimated of the Ohio Fall crop yield.

The corn forecast by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service is still 99 percent as large as last year. But the predicted yield of 172,752,000 bushels reflects a drop in the acreage yield from 56 bushels on Aug. 1 to 48 bushels on Sept. 1.

Dry weather cut expected soybean crops to 21,980,000 bushels where last year it was 23,232,000. The expected 4,244,000-ton hay crop is six percent greater than last year, but too frequent rains in early Summer and lack of rainfall in late Summer cut the yield.

Oats were forecast for 50,307,000 bushels compared to 41,292,000 in 1950. Barley and buckwheat both were low in estimated yield with buckwheat set at 198,000 bushels compared to 266,000 last year.

The plane, bound from Perpignan in Southern France to Oran, Algeria, last was seen as it passed near Valencia, Spain.

Leipzig Anti-Red Riot Reported

LEIPZIG, Sept. 13 — A self-described "eyewitness" said today that 3,500 East Germans rioted in Leipzig recently, storming Communist police headquarters in an attempt to free two jailed anti-Red youths.

An estimated hundred demonstrators were said to have been arrested and large numbers on both sides reportedly were injured.

The "eyewitness," newly-arrived in West Berlin, said the Leipzig residents threw rocks, seized one of several fire trucks sent to disperse them and turned a pressure hose on the police.

Leipzig Anti-Red Riot Reported

LEIPZIG, Sept. 13 — A self-described "eyewitness" said today that 3,500 East Germans rioted in Leipzig recently, storming Communist police headquarters in an attempt to free two jailed anti-Red youths.

An estimated hundred demonstrators were said to have been arrested and large numbers on both sides reportedly were injured.

The "eyewitness," newly-arrived in West Berlin, said the Leipzig residents threw rocks, seized one of several fire trucks sent to disperse them and turned a pressure hose on the police.

Sugar Ray Regains Crown In 10th Round

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—A million-dollar fighter in a million-dollar fight, and once again the middleweight champion of the world: Sugar Ray Robinson, who tasted his own blood, turned on Randy Turpin and went berserk.

In years to come, that tenth round in the Polo Grounds ring, hemmed by a crushing sea of 61,370 fight fans, will remain brightly etched—Turpin, his face a tight smile as he saw the blood spill from Sugar Ray's eye, moving in to put him away—and being rocked, smashed, dropped, stunned and hung on the ropes like a dead fly.

Referee Ruby Goldstein hovered over the carnage, impelled finally to throw his arms around the British boy and stop the thing, not knowing the round's end was only eight seconds away.

For ten full minutes after it was over, Turpin, the 23-year-old strong boy who rose from obscurity to wrest the title from Robinson in London last July, lay back on his stool in a daze while a doctor worked over him.

What Turpin did win was 25 per cent of the net receipts—receipts which totaled $767,630 at the box office and enough through theater television, movie rights and royalties to put the total over the million for the first time in the history of any fight beneath the heavyweight stake. What the 31-year-old Robinson had won was 30 per cent of the net, a well-earned rest—and that championship.

"I won't fight again until late in the year," Sugar Ray said after the fight. "When I do, it will be for the heart fund, working with the Runyon cancer fund."

• • •

UP TO THE END, it was a close fight. One judge had Robinson ahead five to three, with one even, and the other had Robinson in front five to four. Referee Goldstein had it even, both in rounds and points.

Though Ray was slightly ahead through nine rounds, he was tiring, breathing deeply, holding on in the clinches. Randy displayed freshness and eagerness between rounds when he disdained time and again to swig from the water bottle.

The bell came for the tenth round, and this happened:

They came out, quickly, and Turpin, ducking under a Robinson right, brought his own right hand up and gashed Sugar Ray alongside the left eye. Robinson stepped back, uncertainly, and in the "ooohh!" from the crowd he knew he had been cut.

His upper lip sat back against his gums, Robinson came back with a right hand that drove into Turpin's jawbone and spun the Englishman half around. Back of that punch, like a brother, came another one and Turpin's knees spattered apart.

Another right hand sent him careening into the south ropes. Turpin shook his head and came forward, hands away from his body, and this time the right hand of Robinson hit him awfully, clapping him to the floor on his back.

At six Turpin was on his knees. At nine he stood up, disbelieving, and in a spray of savage rights and lefts he was against the west ropes, hands at his side, shaking his head, as if to say, "no, no, no."

In front of him, literally shaking with fury, stood Sugar Ray Robinson. He measured him. He belted him. He measured him. He belted him.

Finally, Ruby Goldstein ended it.

"It was do or die," Sugar Ray said afterwards. "I knew that."

Sugar Ray Regains Crown In 10th Round

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—A million-dollar fighter in a million-dollar fight, and once again the middleweight champion of the world: Sugar Ray Robinson, who tasted his own blood, turned on Randy Turpin and went berserk.

In years to come, that tenth round in the Polo Grounds ring, hemmed by a crushing sea of 61,370 fight fans, will remain brightly etched—Turpin, his face a tight smile as he saw the blood spill from Sugar Ray's eye, moving in to put him away—and being rocked, smashed, dropped, stunned and hung on the ropes like a dead fly.

Referee Ruby Goldstein hovered over the carnage, impelled finally to throw his arms around the British boy and stop the thing, not knowing the round's end was only eight seconds away.

For ten full minutes after it was over, Turpin, the 23-year-old strong boy who rose from obscurity to wrest the title from Robinson in London last July, lay back on his stool in a daze while a doctor worked over him.

What Turpin did win was 25 per cent of the net receipts—receipts which totaled $767,630 at the box office and enough through theater television, movie rights and royalties to put the total over the million for the first time in the history of any fight beneath the heavyweight stake. What the 31-year-old Robinson had won was 30 per cent of the net, a well-earned rest—and that championship.

"I won't fight again until late in the year," Sugar Ray said after the fight. "When I do, it will be for the heart fund, working with the Runyon cancer fund."

* * *

UP TO THE END, it was a close fight. One judge had Robinson ahead five to three, with one even, and the other had Robinson in front five to four. Referee Goldstein had it even, both in rounds and points.

Though Ray was slightly ahead through nine rounds, he was tiring, breathing deeply, holding on in the clinches. Randy displayed freshness and eagerness between rounds when he disdained time and again to swig from the water bottle.

The bell came for the tenth round, and this happened:

They came out, quickly, and Turpin, ducking under a Robinson right, brought his own right hand up and gashed Sugar Ray alongside the left eye. Robinson stepped back, uncertainly, and in the "ooohh!" from the crowd he knew he had been cut.

His upper lip sat back against his gums, Robinson came back with a right hand that drove into Turpin's jawbone and spun the Englishman half around. Back of that punch, like a brother, came another one and Turpin's knees spattered apart.

Another right hand sent him careening into the south ropes. Turpin shook his head and came forward, hands away from his body, and this time the right hand of Robinson hit him awfully, clapping him to the floor on his back.

At six Turpin was on his knees. At nine he stood up, disbelieving, and in a spray of savage rights and lefts he was against the west ropes, hands at his side, shaking his head, as if to say, "no, no, no."

In front of him, literally shaking with fury, stood Sugar Ray Robinson. He measured him. He belted him. He measured him. He belted him.

Finally, Ruby Goldstein ended it.

"It was do or die," Sugar Ray said afterwards. "I knew that."

CHS Reservists Have Six Games Ahead Of Them

Circleville's reserve football season will begin its 1951 operations here next Thursday afternoon with a contest against Columbus Central juniors.

In all, the local reserve aggregation has six contests facing it this season, four here and two away. All games are played in the afternoon.

Schedule of games lined up for the Red and Black reserve gridders this season is as follows:

Sept. 20—Columbus Central
Oct. 4—Upper Arlington
Oct. 8—Chillicothe
Oct. 11—Washington C. H.
Oct. 18—at Lancaster
Oct. 24—at Chillicothe

Tigers Ending Workouts For 1951 Opener; Rosary Starters Listed

Circleville's Red and Black Tiger football team will be seeking its 27th victory in 28 starts spanning four seasons of play when they meet invading Columbus Holy Rosary gridders here Friday night in the 1951 season opener.

The CHS'ers are to end their practice sessions for the Rosary opener at about 6:45 p. m. Thursday under the lights at the high school gridiron.

Tiger teams during the last three seasons have racked up an impressive skein of victories against all comers.

Since the final game of 1947, the CHS'ers have copped three South Central Ohio League championships, turned in two perfect seasons and registered 26 wins out of 27 starts.

Lone defeat plaguing the Tigers during the period happened last season when Columbus St. Charles, a newcomer to the Red and Black schedule, handed the locals a stinging 26-13 setback.

The Tigers recuperated from the midseason jolt, however, to win the remainder of the games on their schedule and pick up their third SCOL pennant in a row.

While the Tigers will be out to continue their long-running string of victories in Friday's opener, Holy Rosary gridders will seek to set a record of a sort for themselves in the tilt.

Rosary footballers Friday will be out to put an end to the underdog role it has slipped into during the last decade when meeting Tiger teams.

* * *

AT LEAST during the last 10 years, and within the memory of most CHS rooters, Rosary has invaded season after season to absorb losses at the hands of Tiger teams.

Closest call for the CHS'ers in the past few years came in 1940, when the capital Catholic schoolboys fought to a scoreless 0-0 deadlock against the locals.

And Rosary, on paper, appears in shape to give this year's Red and Black team a run for its money.

Of the starting eleven named by Rosary Coach Forest Sharrock Thursday, eight saw action here against the Tigers in last year's opener. Only two of them were starters, however.

The 1951 Rosary team boasts a fairly hefty forward wall averaging at about 175 pounds—almost equalling Circleville's when Big Bill Gillis at about 260 is in the lineup.

However, five other potential starters, boys who also saw action here in last year's opener, will be benched because of injuries.

Sharrock said the list includes Richard Corroba, 250, who has cracked ribs, and Ted Loope, a varsity end. The regulars were injured in intrasquad scrimmages while Sharrock was shaping up his team to meet the Tigers.

Circleville also has its problems, both with injuries and with quitting.

Charles Johnson, who rejected the Tiger togs last weekend, has rejoined the squad, although Clarence Boyd, potential varsity end, has quit. Boyd joins Harry Redman, who also quit last weekend following the SCOL preview in Washington C. H.

* * *

TIGER INJURIES going into the opener include Jerry Pritchard, Ted Raymond and Lloyd Brannon. Pritchard may see some action, however.

Friday's opener is slated to begin at 8 p. m., preceded by a flag-raising ceremony by the CHS band and members of Co. I, 166th Infantry, Circleville's National Guard unit.

Probable starting lineup for the opener announced by Rosary Coach Sharrock is:

LE—Fritz Ritter
LT—Dave Burns (cc)
LG—Joe McCarthy
C—Dick Lumpe
RG—Joe Gilmore
RT—Tom Keefer (cc)
RE—Richard Foley
QB—Bill Hammond
LH—John Noll
RH—Jack Kegelmeyer
FB—Rudy Weisner

Sokolsky's

In the "House of Seven Gables" and in other houses, there are, of course, secret staircases and chimneys into which children could be hidden. This was for safety against Indian raids and such events. Those people knew no security and risked much, and perhaps that is why their houses are built so closely together. And yet, even now, there is an air of peace and quiet in this town which is hard to find elsewhere, particularly in a place where industry and neon signs and the automobile are also present.

Salem captured my imagination and love and I could not help wondering why the Ford Foundation, which seeks to spend millions in all parts of the world, does not devote itself to the restoration and preservation of the national monuments of American tradition.

New England is rich in such treasures; but they exist all over this land. Henry Ford was captured by an enthusiasm for old America; it would be a living monument to him if all the beauty of the early periods of American life could be preserved as the French safeguard their national monuments. That would be something useful for the Ford Foundation to do.

Hayes Drags Out Crying Rag, Too

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13 — Ohio State Football Coach Woody Hayes did some kicking today over the practice sessions being turned in by his Big Ten title contenders.

Following yesterday's rather unauspicious scrimmaging, the Buckeye grid pilot declared:

"I think North High could have beaten us tonight. We just were awful again. We haven't been clicking since Tuesday morning's practice."

Floating Dream Runs In Feature

Floating Dream, Pickaway County's Little Brown Jug favorite, is the horsemen's choice in the three-year-old pace feature race at the Union County fair in Marysville Thursday.

Purse for this top one-mile pace has been upped from $450 to $1,500.

Tigers Ending Workouts For 1951 Opener; Rosary Starters Listed

Circleville's Red and Black Tiger football team will be seeking its 27th victory in 28 starts spanning four seasons of play when they meet invading Columbus Holy Rosary gridders here Friday night in the 1951 season opener.

The CHS'ers are to end their practice sessions for the Rosary opener at about 6:45 p. m. Thursday under the lights at the high school gridiron.

Tiger teams during the last three seasons have racked up an impressive skein of victories against all comers.

Since the final game of 1947, the CHS'ers have copped three South Central Ohio League championships, turned in two perfect seasons and registered 26 wins out of 27 starts.

Lone defeat plaguing the Tigers during the period happened last season when Columbus St. Charles, a newcomer to the Red and Black schedule, handed the locals a stinging 26-13 setback.

The Tigers recuperated from the midseason jolt, however, to win the remainder of the games on their schedule and pick up their third SCOL pennant in a row.

While the Tigers will be out to continue their long-running string of victories in Friday's opener, Holy Rosary gridders will seek to set a record of a sort for themselves in the tilt.

Rosary footballers Friday will be out to put an end to the underdog role it has slipped into during the last decade when meeting Tiger teams.

* * *

AT LEAST during the last 10 years, and within the memory of most CHS rooters, Rosary has invaded season after season to absorb losses at the hands of Tiger teams.

Closest call for the CHS'ers in the past few years came in 1940, when the capital Catholic schoolboys fought to a scoreless 0-0 deadlock against the locals.

And Rosary, on paper, appears in shape to give this year's Red and Black team a run for its money.

Of the starting eleven named by Rosary Coach Forest Sharrock Thursday, eight saw action here against the Tigers in last year's opener. Only two of them were starters, however.

The 1951 Rosary team boasts a fairly hefty forward wall averaging at about 175 pounds—almost equalling Circleville's when Big Bill Gillis at about 260 is in the lineup.

However, five other potential starters, boys who also saw action here in last year's opener, will be benched because of injuries.

Sharrock said the list includes Richard Corroba, 250, who has cracked ribs, and Ted Loope, a varsity end. The regulars were injured in intrasquad scrimmages while Sharrock was shaping up his team to meet the Tigers.

Circleville also has its problems, both with injuries and with quitting.

Charles Johnson, who rejected the Tiger togs last weekend, has rejoined the squad, although Clarence Boyd, potential varsity end, has quit. Boyd joins Harry Redman, who also quit last weekend following the SCOL preview in Washington C. H.

* * *

TIGER INJURIES going into the opener include Jerry Pritchard, Ted Raymond and Lloyd Brannon. Pritchard may see some action, however.

Friday's opener is slated to begin at 8 p. m., preceded by a flag-raising ceremony by the CHS band and members of Co. I, 166th Infantry, Circleville's National Guard unit.

Probable starting lineup for the opener announced by Rosary Coach Sharrock is:

LE—Fritz Ritter
LT—Dave Burns (cc)
LG—Joe McCarthy
C—Dick Lumpe
RG—Joe Gilmore
RT—Tom Keefer (cc)
RE—Richard Foley
QB—Bill Hammond
LH—John Noll
RH—Jack Kegelmeyer
FB—Rudy Weisner

Sokolsky's These Days

In the "House of Seven Gables" and in other houses, there are, of course, secret staircases and chimneys into which children could be hidden. This was for safety against Indian raids and such events. Those people knew no security and risked much, and perhaps that is why their houses are built so closely together. And yet, even now, there is an air of peace and quiet in this town which is hard to find elsewhere, particularly in a place where industry and neon signs and the automobile are also present.

Salem captured my imagination and love and I could not help wondering why the Ford Foundation, which seeks to spend millions in all parts of the world, does not devote itself to the restoration and preservation of the national monuments of American tradition.

New England is rich in such treasures; but they exist all over this land. Henry Ford was captured by an enthusiasm for old America; it would be a living monument to him if all the beauty of the early periods of American life could be preserved as the French safeguard their national monuments. That would be something useful for the Ford Foundation to do.

Hayes Drags Out Crying Rag, Too

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13 — Ohio State Football Coach Woody Hayes did some kicking today over the practice sessions being turned in by his Big Ten title contenders.

Following yesterday's rather unauspicious scrimmaging, the Buckeye grid pilot declared:

"I think North High could have beaten us tonight. We just were awful again. We haven't been clicking since Tuesday morning's practice."

Floating Dream Runs In Feature

Floating Dream, Pickaway County's Little Brown Jug favorite, is the horsemen's choice in the three-year-old pace feature race at the Union County fair in Marysville Thursday.

Purse for this top one-mile pace has been upped from $450 to $1,500.
